NAVAL PARLEY WRECKED

EMBARGO ON OIL DELAYED

BRITISH POLICY
UNCERTAIN

LEAGUE WILL INVESTIGATE

London, Jan. 15.
The question of all sanctions occupied most of the Cabinet's time this morning.

After discussion, it was generally felt it was impossible to tell to what extent an oil embargo should be applied and to what extent the oil supplying countries were prepared to co-operate. It was therefore impossible to take an immediate decision with regard to an embargo.

It is understood the question of the fate of the American Neutrality Bill was also raised.

It is believed the policy of the Government will be to favour continuing sanctions against Italy, but to ascertain by inquiry on the spot how the situation stands with regard to an oil embargo.

Technical aspects of the problem will be explored by Mr. Anthony Eden at Geneva. It is learned that it is not a question for decision for or against oil sanctions that confronts the Cabinet, but a decision whether or not they can be carried out.

It is also gathered that from the viewpoint of enforcement of sanctions the co-operation of member states of the League of Nations has improved.

—Reuter.

NO ACTION EXPECTED

Paris, Jan. 15.
French leaders believe the League of Nations' Council at its next week's meeting will not impose new sanctions against Italy, since Italy thus far has made no effective progress in her Ethiopian campaign and the present penalties have been unexpectedly effective.

It is pointed out that at present none of the leading powers sees any reason for immediately placing an embargo on oil.

Moreover, the commencement of the rains in Ethiopia precludes any Italian advance during the next eight months, in which there is ample time to pursue peace negotiations.

It is learned that M. Pierre Laval, the French Prime Minister, hopes that important conversations may be arranged with Baron Aloisi, the Italian diplomat, at Geneva. But he doubts that they will lead directly to peace. —United Press.

EDEN'S INSTRUCTIONS

London, Jan. 15.
Mr. Anthony Eden, the Foreign Minister, has been instructed, following a meeting of the British Cabinet, to propose to Geneva next week that the League create a sub-committee for the investigation of the possible effects of an oil embargo against Italy.

Diplomats believe the proposal will result in the postponement of the oil boycott. —United Press.

Iowa's Loss Recalled

INVESTIGATION DEMANDED

Portland, Jan. 15.
Mr. G. O. Hunter, vice-president of the Portland Central Labour Council, in a radio talk to-day, demanded a federal investigation into the loss with all hands of the steamer Iowa.

This followed the Bureau of Navigation's announcement that an investigation was impossible because there were no survivors.

Mr. Hunter charged that the wreck was due to the fact that the company tried to save money and that the Iowa carried no life boat, as is the general custom of the Columbia River mouth. —United Press.

LOCAL DOLLAR UNCHANGED

The Hongkong dollar was unchanged on opening this morning, the Bank's official rate being 1s. 3½d. Inter-bank rates were about 1s. 3½d. and 1s. 3½d. buyers. The market was fairly quiet, with the tone somewhat easier than yesterday.

OFFENSIVE

ETHIOPIAN VICTORY

(Special to "Telegraph")

It is officially announced that General Graziani, commanding Italy's southern armies in Ethiopia, has commenced his attack in the region of Dolo against Ras Desta Demtu and his fierce warrior tribes.

A communique states that Marshal Badoglio has telegraphed:

"The Ethiopians, under Ras Demtu, have established themselves during the past several days between the Galanadoria and the Dnaparna Rivers, in order to bring pressure upon the Italian Somaliland front, at the Dolo sector."

"On January 12, General Graziani initiated a strong action. The Ethiopians have been repulsed and are being pursued."

"The battle continues all along the front. Our losses thus far are not serious."

"The British front aviation activity is intense." —United Press.

SHARP EXCHANGE OF NOTES

Mongolia-Manchukuo Tension Increases

Moscow, Jan. 15.

Vigorous language is used in notes exchanged by the Governments of the Mongolian Peoples Republic and Manchukuo on the subject of the recent border incidents. Manchukuo has threatened to take decisive action, notwithstanding the consequences involved.

In reply the Mongolians have asserted the frontier incidents have been caused by Manchukuo and Japan, who are clearly aiming at complicating relations. —Reuter.

Further details of this aggravated situation will be published in to-day's Final Edition of the Hongkong Telegraph.

ETHIOPIAN SUCCESS

Dessale, Jan. 15.
A belated communique, dated January 5, states that Ras Silemu surprised the Italian forces in Gjeralt, and in the sudden attack completely defeated them.

The Italians lost sixty-five killed. The Ethiopian losses were five killed and a number of wounded. —United Press.

JAPANESE FORMULA FIRMLY REFUSED BY BRITAIN AND AMERICA PREDICTIONS OF CRISIS IN PACIFIC INVOLVE HONGKONG

LONDON, JAN. 15.
THE NAVAL CONFERENCE IS WRECKED AND FROM ALL SIDES HAVE COME PREDICTIONS OF CRISIS, WITH THE STORM CENTRING IN THE PACIFIC, POSSIBLY AROUND HONGKONG AND THE PHILIPPINES.

The Japanese decision to withdraw from the Conference was officially announced in a statement issued at the end of to-day's meeting.

"We desire to declare most emphatically that notwithstanding our withdrawal from the Conference we are far from entertaining the slightest wish to embark upon an armaments race," the statement added. "We are firmly determined to endeavour, as heretofore, to promote the cause of world peace by assiduously cultivating the best and friendliest relations with other nations." —Reuter.

"WE CANNOT AGREE"

The following statement was issued by the Japanese delegation to the London Naval Conference:

"We cannot agree to the proposals of other delegations, as they do not meet with our fundamental thesis of liquidating our position of inferiority under the existing treaties and providing for minimum forces required for the safety of our national defences."

JAPANESE THREAT TO BRITAIN

ITALIAN PRESS WARNING

CRISIS IN PACIFIC

Rome, Jan. 15.

While it is generally regarded as likely that this will be the last day of the Five Power Naval Conference in London, Japan's withdrawal will be taken here as foreshadowing an open clash between Eastern and Western imperialism in the Pacific.

The newspaper Stampa declares that Japan has won all the points of the game during the past few years. Now the Washington Treaty system is ended, Great Britain and the United States will have only one weapon at their disposal: namely, the fortification of Hongkong and the Philippines. But will they resort to this? The paper asks itself.

"Hitherto, Britain and America have prevented the fateful Pacific conflict from assuming an aspect of open war by simply giving way before the Japanese advance; but renunciation is no solution, and grave issues will arise to-morrow for the United States and the British Empire," says this newspaper.

The Italian press generally deplores "the short-sightedness" of Great Britain in laying up her fleet in the Mediterranean and absorbing her energies in the miserable Ethiopian conflict while Japan is building up an impregnable position in the Far East, from which will come a menace to European interests in China as a whole and to the whole future of the British Empire in the Pacific.

The press talks of the possibility of construction, under Japanese auspices, of a canal through the Isthmus of Kra, which would destroy the power of the Singapore naval base. —Reuter.

GERMAN'S THREAT

Berlin, Jan. 15.
The veiled threat that Germany might consider the Anglo-German naval pact jeopardised if the Naval Conference collapses as a result of the withdrawal of the Japanese, is contained in a communique published in the Diplomatishche Correspondenz to-day. The communique is regarded as reflecting the views of the Wilhelmstrasse.

It declares that "Germany proved her willingness to adapt her defence for security to a general reduction of naval armaments by concluding the Anglo-German naval pact. Therefore Germany would like to see certain developments avoided which might endanger existing agreements and create a new situation with all its problems." —Reuter.

INEVITABLE OUTCOME

Berlin, Jan. 15.

The Japanese withdrawal from the "Other delegations have made clear that they cannot accept our proposal for a common upper limit. Therefore we have no choice but to leave the conference."

"We desire to declare emphatically that far from entertaining the slightest wish to embark upon an armaments race, we are firmly determined to promote the cause of world peace by assiduously cultivating the friendliest relations with other nations." —United Press.

BRITISH STAND OUTLINED

London, Jan. 15.

Viscount Monckton, discussing the technical aspects of the naval situation from the British viewpoint, made six points.

First, he said, naval equality is not measurable in terms of ships, but of distance from bases, in long communications, all of which must be considered.

Second, the power with the greater naval needs cannot demand the territories of essential defence to concentrate its entire fleet in distant waters.

Third, a power with world-wide responsibilities must devote its naval forces to the protection of its communications between various parts of the empire, and these long communications must require forces exceeding those of a power whose whole fleet is concentrated in home waters.

Fourth, a common upper limit is inconsistent with the defence requirements of the British Commonwealth, which must take account of its responsibilities in European waters, and in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

BEST GUARANTEE

Fifth, the Washington Treaty offers the best guarantee for equality of security.

Sixth, the Japanese proposal would face Britain with a strange situation, in which every country, however slender its resources, would not only be entitled but would actually be indirectly encouraged to build up to its discomfited strength.

Expressing his sincere regret that he was unable to find in the Japanese plan a basis for the reduction or limitation of navies, Viscount Monckton said he hoped the Japanese delegation would continue to seek co-operation with other delegations and that some alternative method of achieving the end which all had in view might thus be discovered. —Reuter.

Naval Conference is regarded as the inevitable outcome by practically the entire press of Germany.

"Japan goes," but Moscow comes," is the comment of the Kokolatseliger. This paper adds: "The absence of an honest determination to disarm completely the conference to failure from the beginning. The United States and Britain may arrive at some agreement, but they cannot lay down any definite disarmament programme as long as Japan does not join in."

"Meanwhile the Franco-Italian rivalry continues," the paper adds. "Volksrecht Beobachter" heads its report from London with "Anglo-American Naval Agreement Against Japan."

AMERICAN REBUFF TO JAPAN

U.S. NOT ENTITLED
TO SUPERIORITY

NAGANO'S ARGUMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, Jan. 15.

The Five Power Naval Conference has ended in complete failure, following the Powers' refusal to accept Japan's parity demand. Thereupon, Japan officially withdrew from the Conference.

Admiral Otsu Nagano, the chief of the Japanese delegation, in a brief statement, said Japan had no other choice than to withdraw from the conference due to the divergence of views.

Admiral Nagano's plea for equality was couched in strong language. It was a demand. He stated that the United States was not entitled to equality with Great Britain because of the British Empire's greater defence needs.

Mr. Norman Davis, the chief of the American delegation, replied, implying that Japan was seeking a state of non-aggression, and non-menace, for which it was required. He said the present treaties provided equal defensive security due to the geographical location of the powers.

"It is impossible to change the geography. Should a nation in this naturally secure position possess naval armaments equal to those powers not so favoured, that nation would have a marked naval superiority, far more than sufficient for her defence needs," declared Mr. Davis.

NO INSURANCE

"Equal armaments do not ensure equal security," he argued.

"The Japanese have stated that one of their objectives is to create a state of non-aggression, and non-menace. We are convinced this state now exists."

It would be most difficult, even in more normal times and in conditions of greater mutual confidence, to agree upon such a radical readjustment of relative strengths as would be involved in the acceptance of a common upper limit," Mr. Davis went on.

In face of the world's present instability, such readjustment, quite aside from the question of principle, is impossible," he declared.

"Bearing in mind the situations in the Far East and in Europe and in Africa, the United States is unwilling to consent to any change which would

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION

LONG RECORD OF SAFETY

London, Jan. 15.

A shadow has crossed the Great Western Railway's claim to be the safest railway in the world by the fatal injuries received by the driver and a passenger when the Penzance London night express collided with five trucks which broke away from a local train at a siding near Swindon.

Twenty-six others were injured, six seriously.

The Company had previously only had one passenger train accident involving death to passengers in the last twenty years. This occurred in South Wales in 1928, when one person was killed. —Reuter's Bulletin Service.

London, Jan. 15.

A bulletin issued at 6.30 p.m. states that Mr. Rudyard Kipling had a very restful day, this morning's improvement being still maintained.

A later bulletin, issued at 10.30 p.m., stated that Mr. Kipling was maintaining his slight improvement.

The first three coaches of the express were derailed, one falling down an embankment. The driver and 27 passengers were injured, nine seriously, and the driver and one passenger have since died. The fireman had a remarkable escape.

Doctors and nurses, rushed from Swindon, attended to the injured in the light of bonfires of the wreckage. Breakdown gangs have been at work all day clearing the blocked section of the line, and meaning trains to and from South Wales and the West of England have been considerably delayed. —British Wireless.

PROBING LOSS OF AIRLINER

WHEN WAS SEARCH
COMMENCED

DESTROYER DELAYED

Alexandria, Jan. 15.
Keen questioning by the Coroner with regard to the time elapsed before a search was made for the wrecked Imperial Airways liner, City of Khartoum, was the main feature of the resumed inquest on the victims of the disaster.

Mr. McKeckling, Superintendent of the air base on the night of the disaster, stated that he was told at 8 p.m. that the flying-boat had not yet landed, and he went to the landing-stage to see whether there were any signs of the liner.

He then returned to his office and asked Lieut.-Cdr. Micklethwait, of the destroyer Beagle, who was waiting to meet a passenger on the City of Khartoum, to put to sea for a search. This was at 8.15 p.m., about an hour after the accident.

The Commander-in-Chief of the British Fleet at 8.52 p.m. gave permission to Lieut.-Cdr. Micklethwait to put to sea, and the Beagle started at 9.35 p.m. The order was delayed in order to obtain the latest information from the pilot of an Imperial Airways plane who had just arrived. —Reuter.

WATCHED AIRLINER'S
LAST TAKE-OFF

Memphis, Jan. 15.

Mr. John T. Shea disembarked from the doomed American Airlines Lines plane, "Southerner," at Memphis and watched the last take-off of the plane when she left for Little Rock, Neb.

He said afterwards that one of her motors although not missing, seemed to be spinning overhead and lacked the smooth roar which characterised it formerly.

The crash is the worst in the history of American commercial aviation, for seventeen lives were lost. The previous record disaster was sixteen killed in an airliner's crash at Ocean-side, Cal., in January, 1930. —United Press.

WIFE LOSES DIVORCE BATTLE AFTER FOUR YEARS

A four-year-long legal battle over a divorce decree was finally ended in London last month in the chamber of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the highest tribunal of the Empire.

The story starts in 1931. A Canadian judge granted a decree against Mrs. Corn Lillian McPherson, wife of Mr. Oran Leo McPherson, then Minister of Public Works for Alberta. The suit was heard in the judges' law library at Edmonton, Alberta.

After the decree had been made absolute, Mr. McPherson married Mrs. Mattern, wife of Mr. Leroy Mattern, whom he had cited as co-respondent. Mrs. Mattern had divorced Mr. Mattern on the ground of his misconduct with Mrs. McPherson.

After Mr. McPherson's remarriage, Mrs. McPherson, pleading that her husband's suit had not been heard in open court, appealed to the Supreme Court of Alberta.

to have the decree against her declared void. Her appeal failed.

She now carried that appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Three Lords of the Judicial Committee delivered their judgment.

"Time Had Lapsed"

Lord Blanesburgh, their spokesman, said that Mr. McPherson married again long after the decree had been made absolute, and long after the time of any appeal had expired.

It was then for the first time alleged that the trial of the suit in the judges' library was not a suit in open court.

The Committee affirmed their belief in the bona fides of the judge. They believed it was unhealthy notoriety rather than normal publicity that the judge really desired to restrict.

The trial of undefended suits in the judges' library, with its warning-off notice—a brass plate on the door marked "Private"—although perhaps infrequent, was not unknown.

There was no way to correct this tendency more effectively, Lord Blanesburgh said, than to require that the trial of these cases should always take place, in the fullest sense, in open court.

The Committee were, however, of opinion that the decree in question was voidable only, and not void; and that the time for voiding it had long gone by.

They were dealing with a decree pronounced after a serious trial, free from every defect in procedure. To say that such a decree was void would seem to be out of the question.

The appeal was dismissed.

Australia To Spend Two Million On Defence

IN accordance with Imperial defence plans, Australia is spending more than £2,000,000, this year, extra on her navy, army, air development, coastal defence and munition manufacture. The total expenditure this financial year, will be £7,352,399, or nearly 23/- per head of the population.

Two new ships will be added to the navy, the cruiser Sydney and the ship Yarra. Navy personnel will be increased from 4,080 to 4,172. More oil fuel tanks are to be built.

Coastal artillery, units will be increased, and bigger guns will be mounted. Anti-aircraft guns and searchlights will be manufactured, and land forces will be mechanized, according to Austral News.

New Air Force squadrons are to be formed, and more machines bought. An increased amount of £50,000 is being provided for civil aviation development, including the enlargement of aerodromes and the extension of night landing facilities. There are already 151 public aerodromes.

PARENTS OF 10 GIRLS WANT MORE GIRLS

AS Mr. Milburn Lietsch, who is thirty-four, and his wife, who is thirty-three, have always wanted a son and have just been disappointed for the tenth time, they are now "going to try to set up a record for girls."

So said Mr. Lietsch to-day, in the intervals between serving customers in his shop in Burlington, Iowa.

He was asked whether he and his wife hoped to have any more children; his reply was:

"More children? You bet your life! But we have changed our ambition now we have ten daughters."

"Cold Of Them"

"We always want a boy. We wanted boys and girls in the family, but hoping and praying for a boy has not done any good."

"So now we are going ahead to try to set up a record for girls."

"We don't believe in birth control. We are members of the Roman Catholic Church."

"We are glad to have babies. My wife and I feel exactly the same way about them."

Mr. Lietsch is one of a family of six; Mrs. Lietsch one of a family of four.

All practical business is performed by women. They run our homes with great success. If we were logical we should carry it further and say, "As they manage the affairs of the home they would manage the affairs of the State much better."

MEN

Consider what a mess politicians have got the world into. It would be a good plan for men to hand over affairs of State to women.

We could then pursue our own natural inclination for art, for we are the artistic sex.

A new invention has been demonstrated in Rome, a wireless telephone whereby those driving in motor cars can phone where they wish.

Psychological Moment?— There's None

THE popular expression, "the psychological moment," is neither psychological nor a period of time.

This statement was made by Dr. A. H. Martin, honorary director of the Australian Institute of Industrial Psychology, when a city business man asked him for a definition of the term.

"One of our salesmen has been canvassing a firm for months and has been unable to obtain any business," said the businessman. "This morning he arrived at what he described as the psychological moment and secured an order. Is that the right term?"

Dr. Martin pointed out that "moment" as used in connection with a psychological reaction in current speech is made in reference to the most suitable time for a happening.

"Actually the psychological moment refers to the force that certain ideas have through their importance in relation to other matters of interest," he said. "In this case moment is drive or weight, and not a modicum of time. In popular speech the confusion of the words is really a form of pun."

"Often a salesman makes numerous calls and is backed by a big advertising campaign and when at last he makes the sale, attributes it to seeing the client at the right psychological moment."

Cumulative Effect

"In reality this is purely the backing up of the effects of his calls, so that each subsequent call enforces the accumulation of impressions made."

"The perseverance of the salesman wears away all resistance," added Dr. Martin.

Dr. Martin added that psychological moment was mostly a matter of conscience.

Settlement of the marital dispute between Mrs. Roxana Brown Spreckels and her multi-millionaire husband, John Detrick Spreckels III, loomed as a possibility in Los Angeles, where Mrs. Spreckels was reported to have spoken in favor of reconciliation. This picture of Mrs. Spreckels is the first taken with her 8-month-old daughter.

PROF. SHELLSHEAR AND THE PEKING MAN

LONDON SHOWS INTEREST

The recent announcement in Hongkong by Professor Shellshear that further remains of Peking man have been discovered in China coincided with the receipt in England of the first complete report on all the remains which have been hitherto found of this million-year-old race of men.

In place of the two skulls and odd bones and teeth with which anthropologists have previously had to be content, a classified description is given of the recovered remains of 24 individuals, ranging in age from five years to over fifty.

The theory is advanced that the cave-dwellers of early China were cannibals with a "weakness" for children, the remains discovered representing head-hunters' trophies.

The conclusion is reached that Peking man may have been the direct fore-runner of the "low-brow" Neanderthal race, which lived in Europe between 50,000 and 20,000 B.C.

In spite of his bloodthirsty habits, in certain peculiarities of his jaw, Peking man shows definite resemblances to the modern Mongolian race-group, and particularly to the Eskimo.

The report represents the first work in this field of Dr. Franz Weidenreich, the new director of Peking man investigations for the Geological Survey of China. The making of further finds is announced in an Exchange Telegraph message.

Remains of Peking man have all come from the limestone caves of Chou Kou Tien, south-east of Peking, where a tooth, the first proof of human occupation, was found in 1927. It is remarkable that from this single find Professor Davidson Black, Dr. Weidenreich's predecessor at Peking, was able to draw the correct conclusion that he was dealing with a hitherto unknown race of man.

Every Stage of Childhood The catalogue, as now completed by Dr. Weidenreich, comprises ten children, two adolescents, and twelve adults, the sexes being evenly represented in each case.

Practically every stage of childhood growth seems to have fallen victim to these prehistoric cannibals. According to Dr. Weidenreich's classification, there is one child of five, one of 5-6, one of 7-8, four of 8-9, one of 9-10, one of 11, one of 13-14, and two adolescents of 14-18.

In addition to a man of over fifty, two others, both women, are described as "surely old." Dr. Weidenreich's most serious doubt is as to whether his method of "sex determination" may not have led him to overestimate the number of females.

His conclusion that the remains are cannibalistic is based on the fact that they consist almost exclusively of jaws, teeth, and fragments of brain cases, and were in most cases crushed or broken before fossilization began.

"It is impossible," he comments, "that the bodies of at least 24 individuals could have been so completely smashed that nothing else remains."

Dr. Weidenreich also concludes that there is no evidence of the simultaneous existence of any more developed race, who might be supposed to have preyed on the race whose remains have now been discovered, and, therefore, that Peking man, although civilised enough to have the use of fire, was also capable of preying on members of his own race.

HE COINED WORD ANZAC

MAJOR A. T. WHITE, an English member of General Birdwood's staff in Egypt, who coined the word "Anzac" as an official code word, has died in England.

Early in the war, Major Wagstaff, of Birdwood's staff, called several of his clerks together and said, "We have to supply a code word for our cable address."

Near the door of the office was stacked a number of stationary boxes, bearing the initials "A. and N.Z.A.C."—Australian and New Zealand Army Corps.

The initials caught Major White's eye. "How about Anzac?" he successfully suggested.

Extraordinary Value

"There is nothing comparable anywhere to this numerous collection of individuals of such an early race," Sir Grafton Elliot-Smith commented to a representative of the Morning Post last night. "Pitdown man in England, and also Java man, are represented by the remains of only single individuals."

"It is of extraordinary value to have a group of people to study instead of only one. The great problem is always to determine how far the characteristics of any one individual can be taken as those of the race. One man, for all we can tell, might have been abnormal."

"This report should also help to restore confidence in the work of anthropologists. From one tooth, Professor Davidson Black postulated a new race. His conclusion was supported by the finding of the original Peking skull and subsequent remains. Now this fuller report on a larger number of individuals comes to bear out our main picture of Peking man."

TATTERED GERMAN RED CROSS FLAG

Wellington, N.Z. Jan. 1.

A badly tattered German Red Cross flag, in the possession of a resident who ultimately placed it in the Dominion War Memorial Museum. The flag was taken from the German Hospital at Grevelingen, which was the township immediately before Bapaume, on the route of the New Zealand Division's advance. The Hospital was one of the first to be taken during the advance. It was there that paper bandages were taken for the first time and were immediately put into use.

His Majesty's Gallant Sailor—and Airman Too

—To Paraphrase Kipling

Britain is training a new type of "sea-dog" to command her ships on their journeys across the Seven Seas.

She needs—or will need within the next four years—at least 180 of them: captains whose ships can race across the sea at 60 m.p.h. and then rise on wings until they are speeding 5,000 feet above the wave-tops at 180 m.p.h.

The training-place for these men is Hamble, on the Solent. Flying boats are the craft they are learning to command.

Britain is putting practically all her Empire air traffic into flying boats. With flying boats we shall start the Atlantic air service.

When it was decided to change from land to water planes Imperial Airways had scarcely a dozen pilots trained in the handling of air boats.

Now senior captains of Imperial Airways are to qualify for their "sea legs" side by side with the newest probationary flying officers. They have to learn an entirely new kind of flying.

All pupils have to put in up to fifteen hours in the small "Cutty Sark" type flying boat and twenty-five hours in the big "Calcutta" boat, City of Swinnow, that was recently withdrawn from Imperial Airways' Mediterranean services.

Sailor Lore

Most of their "flying" hours will be spent on the water. Pilots will put in many hours taxi-ing their new craft up and down the Solent. They must learn all about tides and sea currents.

Also they must learn to row, sail a boat, the right (and many wrong) ways of being towed, of mooring, even seamen's knots.

They must be able to read nautical maps and know the kind of sea bottom that lies beneath their ship's keel, for if an aircraft skipper drops anchor on the wrong kind of sea bottom his craft may be dragged on to rocks or off course by currents and waves.

Another thing they must know—all the signals used by ships; all the things which are the written and unwritten law of the sea.

Laughed At A Film: Free Pass For Life

Herbert Ohrenberger laughed at a film in Boston, Massachusetts, until the entire audience roared and rocked with amusement.

An usher approached him, not to eject him, but to inform him that the manager said he had the most infectious laugh he had ever heard. He therefore tendered him a lifetime pass—good for two persons.

She Tears Away The Veil That Hides Beauty

MISS HENEINA B. KHOURY, who has campaigned in sixteen Oriental countries against purdah (wearing of the veil), is in London arranging for publication of her book, "Eastern Peeps from Behind the Veil."

"God created beautiful faces," she said. "Why should we hide them?"

"Purdah is a custom. It has no part in religion. 'How did the custom begin?' Some say that the prophet loved his youngest wife Fatima most, and that one day he told her to hide when a certain man visited the house. She put on a veil. The other wives copied her."

"So the fashion spread."

Miss Khoury began her travels in 1928. "Then," returning educated from Europe, she exerted the greatest influence in favour of abolishing purdah.

Love Won

"Aisha, a friend of mine, was one of seven girl students at the university of Damascus. All seven were under purdah."

"One day Aisha called on me un veiled. I was very surprised. 'She explained that her cousin, a clever doctor, who had just returned from Europe, had said he would marry a European girl.'

"He told his mother that he would not marry a timid creature who hid herself behind a veil."

"So I left off my veil," Aisha said, "and we marry next week."

"In a week's time," Miss Khoury added, "all seven girls had thrown away their veils."

TRIAL FLIGHTS IN MARCH

New York, Jan. 1.

Following the agreement between Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways to establish a regular mail and passenger service between Great Britain and the United States, Mr. R. Walton Moore, Assistant-Secretary of State, announced to-day that four round trips a week will be run in 1937.

The statement was made after conferences between officials of the British, Irish, Canadian, and United States Governments. Trial flights will, it is expected, begin on March 15 next. The Newfoundland-Ireland route will be tested in the summer, and later that by way of the Azores and Bermuda.

New York is mentioned as the southern port for specially severe weather.

Australian Apples

For German Farm Implements

A trade barter agreement between a Sydney firm of produce exporters and German firms has just been completed.

It involves the exchange of 50,000 cases of Australian apples for German spraying materials, agricultural machinery and general orchard requirements, says Austral News.

Exchange difficulties have resulted in Germany reducing her import of Australian apples by about 900,000 cases, and the agreement is an attempt to revive the demand and facilitate transactions.

DISCOVERED DEBT AFTER 250 YEARS

SUGGESTIONS are being made in Somerset that a 250-year-old debt to Wells Cathedral should be repaid to cover the cost of repairs.

Recently, by chance, the Dean of Wells, Canon R. H. Malden, found an item in the Chapter minute books which revealed that the Dean and Chapter had lent the Duke of Somerset £100 to recruit forces to quell the rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth in 1685.

At 2½ per cent. compound interest, says the Dean, it would amount now to a sum that would save the Cathedral financial anxiety, and he drops the "broad hint" that the Cathedral would settle the account for half the sum due.

PROBLEM FOR REICH

GERMAN STATE FORCES AND BLACK GUARDS

London, Jan. 15. The Times correspondent in Berlin states that the holding by high officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force of a series of conferences at which they are said to have been joined for a time by representatives of the Nazis, the Black Guards and Brown Shirts, has created lively speculation.

The press is completely silent on the subject and The Times correspondent adds that there is no suggestion of the stability of the present regime being immediately threatened. However, it may be necessary in the interests of stability to arrive at a clear and definite understanding about the spheres of competence and authority.

It again raises the question, whether, in a totalitarian state the army can simultaneously be a non-political force and claim that political forces should be subordinated to it.

It is natural that the Army should keep a watchful eye on the Black Guards, which provide Hitler with his bodyguard and flying columns. In the event of internal revolt these, who are understood to number 12,000, will be divided into four regiments and stationed in different parts of Germany.

Apparently they are magnificently trained and equipped with rifles, machine guns and armoured cars.

It was recently been reported that their numbers have been increased to 16,000 strong with anti-aircraft guns, artillery, and signal units.

UNIVERSITY UNION

CORDIAL WELCOME EXTENDED TO
H. E. SIR A. CALDECOTT

"THE HUB OF STUDENT LIFE"

Graduates, students and friends of the Hongkong University gathered in large numbers in the Great Hall yesterday afternoon for a tea party given by the University Union at which a cordial welcome was given to His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, Chancellor of the University, as the new Patron of the Union.

The value of the Union as a training ground for students was stressed by the speakers. His Excellency in the course of his reply said he regarded the Union as the Faculty of Social Philosophy and Team-work.

His Excellency the Governor was accompanied by Capt. W. J. R. Craig, A.D.C.
Mr. Ong Ewe-hin, President of the Union, was in the chair and among those present were Sir William Hornell, Vice-Chancellor of the University, Sir Robert and Lady Ho Tung, Lady Southern, Hon. Sir Shouson Chow, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bell, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Lo, Hon. Mr. S. W. and Mrs. T. Ho, Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chow, Mr. R. H. Kolovall, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. R. Black, Dr. E. L. do Souza, Professor and Mrs. W. I. Gerrard and Miss Gerrard, Professors L. Forster, F. A. Redmond, K. H. Digby, C. A. Middleton-Smith, W. P. Fildes, Dr. R. H. Ho, Dr. R. C. H. Lim, S. V. Boxer, A. B. Reynolds, D. W. Morley, I. Day, B. G. Birch and members of the Union Committee.

On the arrival of His Excellency a group photograph with Sir Andrew seated in the centre was taken in the grounds.

Chairman's Speech

Following tea, the Chairman, welcoming His Excellency, said:—Your Excellency, Sir William Hornell, Ladies and Gentlemen:—It is my happy duty this afternoon on behalf of the University Union to welcome its Patron, Your Excellency to this tea-party.

I have to thank your Excellency for having done us the honour of so kindly consenting to become its Patron, an honour which all of us fully appreciate and of which we are very proud. On this occasion we regret that we are not able to welcome Lady Caldecott as well but I sincerely hope that when she arrives in the Colony we will have the honour of welcoming and entertaining her. Will Your Excellency kindly convey to her our very best wishes and our anticipation of the pleasure of welcoming her later in the year.

I have to apologise for my lateness in welcoming Your Excellency. The reason is that when Your Excellency arrived in the Colony we were in the midst of our examinations. I am not quite sure it was altogether unfortunate as the undergraduates would not then have been looking quite so grand and lively, for who would, after staying up most of the night "mugging" as we call it. Having been an undergraduate myself I am sure Your Excellency will understand and pardon us for not welcoming you sooner.

As you may be aware, Sir, the Union is the heart of the University—the centre of the social life of the students and we flatter ourselves that it may also be regarded as the training ground of some, at least, of the future leaders of China at any rate of good citizens of Hongkong.

Credit Balance

The Union manages its own affairs with the assistance of the Registrar who is our Hon. Treasurer and I am glad to say it is entirely self-supporting and has a tidy credit balance. Sir, the students of this University may at times be criticised but there is one record of which we are justly proud and that is that during all the political and other troubles in China and elsewhere we have studiously kept aloof and been "good boys and girls" (Applause).

I would be failing in my duty if I did not say that this spirit is due to our training here and particularly to the great kindness and courtesy of our beloved Vice-Chancellor and the members of the Staff. We appreciate the fact that we get a fair deal—and now, Sir, Your Excellency must be tired of hearing speeches and addresses and I shall end with an apology for my own humble effort. I really cannot describe adequately how very deeply the undergraduates have been looking forward to this occasion and how honoured we feel that you should be with us this afternoon. Let me assure you, Sir—you can always count on 400 devoted adherents from the Hongkong University Union.

On behalf of the Union we thank you most sincerely. (Applause).

The Vice-Chancellor

Sir William Hornell said: Your Excellency, Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—The Union is the hub of student life. So much the Chairman has told you. The Union is a club but it is much more than a place for light refreshments, billiards and newspaper reading. It touches the students' lives at every point. It finances and controls the Athletic Association and all the Games Clubs. To it are affiliated the Christian Association, the Education Society, the Law and Commerce Society, the Medical Society, the Arts Association, the Chinese Society, the Engineering Society, and the Photographic Society. I need not tell you of what the Arts Association is capable. Its plays have already earned substantial sums for local charities. The Education Society runs a free night school for poor boys.

I was determined when I came here that the students should run their Union themselves. They do run it and they run it smoothly and effectively. I am proud of them and of their Union and I regard the training that they get as members and officers of the Union as the most valuable element in their education here.

A Daring Experiment
This University was and is a daring experiment. Possibly those who started it did not realize for what they were letting themselves in. No one who has the courage and personality to start anything can ever appraise its issue. He that over-veils the wind shall not sow and that regardeth the clouds shall not reap.

I have learnt much since I came here 12 years ago. I have learnt among much else the futility of many rules. The students here do learn at least not to mistake liberty for licence but rather to make a reasonable use of the freedom which it is only right that they should enjoy. After all they are University students and not school boys and school girls.

"My Benjamin"

The University is my Benjamin, the child of my official life. I only wish that I was a bigger man. If I were, all the qualities which I should then possess would be spent in the University's service. It has not been given to me to look back with self-satisfaction on what I have done, for I have made many mistakes. Much less can I now sit back and look forward with a sense of smug security to the future. But nothing can ever take away from me the affection which the students of this University have inspired in me or rob me of the memory of many happy

CORNISH EXPRESS

CRASHES INTO GOODS TRAIN

London, Jan. 15. Twenty-three persons were injured, several seriously, when a passenger express from Penzance ran into the rear of a goods train cutting near Swindon early this morning. Both trains were derailed. The line was blocked. Those who were injured were taken to hospital.

Later.
The engine and three coaches of the express train were smashed, and one coach was overturned.

Twenty three persons were injured and taken to hospital, nine being very seriously hurt.

The first indication of the accident was received when a farmer, who was milking a cow in a field close by, heard the crash and proceeded to the scene and helped to extricate the passengers from the train.
A large bonfire was lit at the side of the railway both for light and to give warmth to the injured passengers. The cause of the accident is as yet unknown.—Reuter.

hours spent in their society. It is in a east of mind that I think the members of the Union for inviting my colleagues and me to this party. It is in this vein that I join the students in welcoming our new Chancellor. Sir Andrew Caldecott is already the students' friend and as such he will live in many a memory. The Union of the students which he will win and hold in ever increasing measure will be for him I know, an all sufficient reward. (Applause).

Governor's Speech

Replying, His Excellency said:—The great Doctor Johnson, after listening to some eulogistic remarks, once turned to Boswell and whispered "I like that man; he flatters me"; and I find myself liking you all very much this afternoon because you have flattered me so much by pretending that I have done you an honour in consenting to become your patron when the truth is, of course, that you asked me to occupy that high and coveted position. And I am particularly grateful to your President for mentioning my wife, because I am missing her so badly that just the mention of her name in your kind welcome makes me feel happier and more at home. I had very encouraging news of her by last mail and I am bold to prophesy that next year I shall be able to introduce her to you, and you will then be able to understand under what inspiration I have been so fortunate as to attain to the proud position which carries with it the Chancellorship of your University.

I appreciate entirely the prime importance of a Union such as this in the scheme of a University. Aristotle has told us that the human being is a social animal and it is essential that men and women should be educated not only in themselves but vis-a-vis others. I regard this Union indeed as the Faculty of Social Philosophy and Team-work.

Here you get your individualistic corners rubbed off and are shaped into pieces which can be fitted comfortably into the jig-saw puzzle of life. You have here a body politic in miniature which you can not only study but help to mould and administer; and I am delighted to hear that it possesses what is so essential to the administration of a body politic—a tidy credit balance.

You remarked, Mr. President, that I must be tired of hearing speeches. Well, as a distinguished foreigner once diplomatically expressed it, "a little, it is good; but too much, it is enough." And, mindful of his warning, I will not impose any further strain on your auditory nerves this afternoon except to say once again how very honoured and grateful I feel to be your patron and your guest.

At the conclusion of his speech, His Excellency visited the tables where he was introduced to the guests by the Chairman.

Prior to dispersing, the gathering joined in accordance musical honours, for He's a Jolly Good Fellow, followed by the popular "Tiger."

Of old, the "town-crier" made things known.

To do this he rang his bell at certain points where he could be sure of the biggest crowds. The difference between then and to-day is that circulation was indicated by the number of listeners; the advertiser of 1936 can only gauge the field his message covers by the number of newspaper readers.

Hence the reason for Chartered Accountants' Certificates of Newspaper Sales.

However much advertising may be discussed, the indisputable fact remains that newspapers must be the first charge on the advertising schedule.

The South China Morning Post and The Hongkong Telegraph give the widest possible certified coverage.

REQUEST TO DOCTORS

ASKED TO STATE IF WILLING TO AID IN TROUBLE

All local medical practitioners have received circulars from the Government asking them if they are willing to serve in time of trouble in the Colony. If they are willing, medical are requested to inform the Government whether they desire to serve in the civil, naval or military branches. The circular states that Government is not anticipating trouble of any sort, but is only desirous of ascertaining how many doctors will volunteer should the need arise. It is learned that some of these circulars were sent out six months ago, and that the balances have just been distributed.

CINEMA NEWS

Notes Supplied By The Theatros

In a picture that is easily the best the big had since the now immortal "It Happened One Night", Claudette Colbert will thoroughly entertain audiences at the Kings and Alhambra Theatres to-day. "She Married Her Boss", the star's newest vehicle, gives her every opportunity to display the piquant warmth that has so endeared her to the movie-going public. The film is, in essence, a comedy, but enough of the dramatic runs through it to give it backbone. And Columbia has supplied it with a supporting cast that smacks of genius. Headed by Melvyn Douglas and Patricia Barakat, Miss Colbert's two leading men, "She Married Her Boss" boasts also of the services of such sterling players as Raymond Walburn, Joan Dixon, Katherine Alexander, Edith Fowles, a child play who is as delightful a star as has come this way in many a moon, and Clara Kimball Young, who comes out of retirement to do very well in a small part. But, of course, it's Miss Colbert all the way. Vivacious, intelligent, disarming, her frankness and her good looks are a sure-fire mind that she is deserving of the highest honours the movies can bestow upon her. As Julia Scott, a painfully efficient private secretary to Leonard Roger played by Douglas, she gets a trouble.

Nino Martini, the golden-voiced tenor, is seen here, with Genevieve Tobin, in "Here's to Romance", coming on Sunday to the King's and Alhambra Theatres.

"Case of the Curious Bride"

"The Case of the Curious Bride," latest of the First National melodramatic mystery thrillers to be filmed under the auspices of the Club, was shown at the Star Theatre yesterday, and held audiences in the grip of its tremendous suspense. Stanley Gardner, which features the brilliant criminal lawyer and detective, Perry Mason, the picture carries him through a series of astounding adventures in his attempt to clear the "curious bride" of the charge of murdering one of her husbands. Probably no screen actor fits the role of Perry Mason as well as Warren William. He both looks and acts the part. Margaret Lindsay, as the "curious bride," is called upon for real emotional feeling and her work is always convincing and sincere. Tall, stately blonde Claire Dodd has the role of Mason's clever secretary-sweetheart. Donald Woods is the jealous second husband, while Allen Jenkins as the tough assistant and body guard of Mason, injects some riotous comedy into the production. Others in the cast who do exceptional work include Phillip Reed, Barton MacLane, Winifred Shaw, Warren Hymer, Olin Howland, Charles Richmond, Thomas Jackson and Henry Kolker.

"Jane Eyre"

An authentic version of a grand old English classic by Charlotte Brontë, "Jane Eyre," commencing today at the Queen's Theatre, features Virginia Bruce and Colin Clive in the leading roles. Miss Bruce, in the title role, gives the finest performance of her successful career. She is a typically Jane Eyre, and portrays her part with all the sweetness of her literary counterpart. Colin Clive also gives a remarkable faithful picture of Mr. Rochester, the English gentleman who brings the first breath of romance into the life of the orphaned Jane. "Jane Eyre" is the simple but moving story of a little girl who is sent to public institution by her cruel, cold-hearted parents. Coming into womanhood she leaves the orphanage and takes a position as governess in an English home. It is here that she first finds happiness and is about to marry Mr. Rochester, when his insane wife breaks out of her quarters and appears at the ceremony. Sick at heart, Jane leaves, and takes up charity work in a distant town. She is about to marry a clergyman and go to India in missionary work, when events transpire that bring her again to her first love.

"Dr. Socrates"

"Dr. Socrates," the Warner Bros. production, in which Paul Muni is starred, scheduled as the next featured attraction at the Queen's Theatre, is heralded as one of the most powerful dramas in which he has appeared on the screen. Muni, in the role of the once famous physician whose nerves have been shattered by the death of his fiancée, tries to bury himself in a small town. In this he is successful until one night a notorious bandit forces him at the point of his revolver to dress a wound he had received in a battle with police. This bandit and his gang terrorize the surrounding territory, rob the bank and shoot up the town. Among those injured is a girl who had leaped from the bandit's clutches by Muni, who has been dubbed Dr. Socrates by a blustering country doctor, Robert Barrat, dresses the girl's wounds and takes her to his home. That same night Dr. Socrates is held up once again and taken to the rendezvous of the place, calls for the Government agents and by a ruse throws the bandits off their guards. So that the secret service men and their posse are able to capture the stronghold without blowing it up and killing the kidnapped girl. Ann Dvorak plays the part of this girl, with whom Paul Muni falls in love. Barton MacLane, now acclaimed as the screen's No. 1 bad man, is the ruthless killer who heads the bandits.

HONGKONG-CANTON COMMUNICATIONS

Now that the Canton-Hankow Railway is progressing towards final completion, there are prospects in the near future of South China having direct connection with Europe via the Hankow-Peking and trans-Siberian lines. The development will be one of the utmost importance to this part of the world. In his recent talk to the Royal Empire Society in London, Sir Cecil Clementi made reference to this project and to the need of a definite link being forged between the Canton-Hankow and the Canton-Kowloon systems. The trouble is that no junction has yet been effected between the two terminal stations at Canton, largely due, as Sir Cecil stated, to an ill-defined suspicion in the minds of certain Chinese politicians that to link up the two lines might prejudice Chinese trade. This is a very shortsighted view, and when analysed, it will be found totally unsound. The fact is that the provision of a loop line between the two systems would be of as much benefit to Canton as to this Colony. Hongkong, as Sir Cecil stated, is the natural deep-sea port of South China; it is so by reason of geographical conditions which cannot be altered. A recognition of this point would result in closer contacts between Hongkong and Canton and be beneficial to both. Sir Cecil, in the course of his speech, also made reference to the desirability of the two centres being linked by aerial services. The two matters are closely inter-related, and it is to be hoped that the difficulties which at present stand in the way of an aerial agreement being reached will soon be overcome.

Issues affecting landing rights are involved, but the more the problem is studied, the more cogent becomes the argument that this Colony's aviation policy should be based on a willingness to welcome air liners of all nationalities, regardless of whether reciprocal rights are conceded or not. Only in this manner will Hongkong be able to take its rightful place as one of the big airports of the world. The arguments in favour of such a

"YES!" I can hear my friends saying. "But what does he know about it? He has no son!" Quite obviously, if I had a son I should want to teach him all the things I was never taught.

Take the body first. My son would swim before he was six, box before he was eight, master a simple set of carpenter's tools by the age of ten, and the principle of the internal combustion engine by the time he was twelve.

In the matter of the mind I would have him taught Greek and Latin, English grammar and literature, French and German, history and geography, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry, physics and chemistry, music and drawing, and last, shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping.

NOTES OF THE DAY

AS GOOD AS DEAD

No-one seems able to say definitely whether or not Japan is definitely to leave the Naval Conference; nor whether, if she does, it will have any serious consequences. In view of the belief that the Conference would be wrecked upon the Japanese demand for parity, it has been reported, Great Britain has already taken steps to lay the keels of two £7,500,000 super-dreadnoughts, even mightier than the Rodney or Nelson. But of that there is no confirmation. Now we are going to venture a prognostication, having read a good many hundreds of words purporting to explain the position at the Naval Conference. We base our prediction on two facts: namely, that Japan will insist upon a common upper limit in naval armaments and that the other powers, Britain and America principally, will oppose her. We surmise that the refusal to consider this formula must wreck the conference. It takes no very painful stretch of the imagination to reach the conclusion that Japan anticipates this impasse, and she is prepared to withdraw from the conference as soon as it is reached. Up to now the delegates have merely managed to postpone the inevitable. The results are something else again. Japan has announced that she will revise her international relations in the event of a naval armaments race. Some observers believe she has already revised them. If a naval race is imminent—and it is by no means unavoidable—it may mean very great tension in the Pacific. In any event, it will certainly bring Hongkong into the forefront of the picture and the strategic advantages, or disadvantages, of possession of this base will be more than ever apparent to interested parties.

(Since the above was written, the Japanese delegates have withdrawn from the Conference, which will, however, continue its work in the hope of attaining an agreement among the other Powers.)

policy have been so frequently stated by us that they call for no further elaboration. The question has now become so urgent that it is high time further efforts were made to secure a final adjustment of the matter. Inasmuch as it is, as we have shown, related to the question of aerial communication between the two ports, the thought suggests itself that something might be done by the conclusion of a double-barrelled agreement which would give Chinese planes the right to land here and also involve construction of the loop-line needed to link the two railway systems having their termini in Canton. Negotiations with this end in view might with advantage to both centres be initiated without further delay.

What I Would Tell My Son

"The essence of all vulgarity lies in want of sensation." Consider this, O my readers, who are always being told that the essence of vulgarity lies in too much sensation!

But I would teach him these things in a way of my own. I had been in the Army just over a week, I and half a dozen other attempt to give him a smatter-civilian held forth at mess one ing of the lot, which means that night on the advantage of a ten years after he has left school he will have forgotten all about all of them.

I would find out in which direction my boy's bent lay and then encourage him along that bent.

If I found when he was fourteen that he still confused oxygen with hydrogen and couldn't begin to size up a problem in algebra by the mere look of it, but on the other hand had a passion for irregular verbs and was a demon at double entry, I should know the kind of brain my boy was developing. And I should develop that kind and drop most of the others.

Because, to put it shortly, knowledge has kindred grooves.

by
James Agate

A boy who finds his way to the piano naturally will want to know languages, and a scientist who is no mathematician is a boat without a rudder. Similarly a botanist who is an authority on roots need not know about Racine—in which, reader, you are, right to detect a highly cultured joke!

But whether my boy is going to grow up to be a Greek And I think I have found what scholar, an astronomer, a professional footballer, or a green-author so out of date that if you grocer, I should insist on his mentioned him in Bloomsbury being able to take down a letter the raised eyebrows would knock in shorthand and type it correct-half the slates off.

So much for body and mind. But there is yet another kind of culture which partakes of both. I would have my boy learn all occurs is the quite too back-to learn—first aid, elementary cooking, how to make a fire, what to do with string.

I shall never forget how, when I had been in the Army just over a week, I and half a dozen other attempt to give him a smatter-civilian held forth at mess one ing of the lot, which means that night on the advantage of a ten years after he has left school he will have forgotten all about all of them.

It was a pouring wet night, we were in the middle of Wiltshire, and the justly annoyed brigadier said: "Each of you gentlemen will march six men and a corporal on to the Downs three miles from here, and make them comfortable for the night. You have an hour to get ready, and in the morning each corporal will report to me how you got on!"

Need I say that it was the corporal and the six men who made each officer comfortable? Whereby the brigadier was discomfited. There is no moral to this story.

But it warns me that in so far as I am a bookish person there is a danger that this article is being written from too bookish an angle. Obviously my advice will be against excess of bookishness, just as a tanner or a bricklayer might warn his son against taking a wholly material view of life. There are still people who when they meet a writing "bloke" say: "Ah, if only I had your book-learning!"

I want therefore to find something which holds good for the sons of bookworms, of bookbinders, and of bookmakers. I want in an old book by an asexual footballer, or a green-author so out of date that if you grocer, I should insist on his mentioned him in Bloomsbury being able to take down a letter the raised eyebrows would knock in shorthand and type it correct-half the slates off.

The name of this quite too noble curiosity, questioning, in the front of danger, the source of the great river beyond the culture which partakes of both. I would have my boy learn all occurs is the quite too back-to learn—first aid, elementary cooking, how to make a fire, what to do with string.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"It would be something to amuse the baby when you aren't home."

Now Ruskin was a great artist who realised the obligation upon the artist to be a showman as well. Light is not to be hidden under a bushel, and Michael Angelo was right to blazon his paintings on the best and biggest ceilings he could find.

Similarly Ruskin, having something striking to say, said it in the most striking way imaginable. Having arrested attention with his sensational sentence he goes on to explain that it is man's duty to be a sensation-seeker and not a sensation-monger.

"Simple and innocent vulgarity is merely an untamed and undeveloped bluntness of body and mind; but in true inbred vulgarity there is a dreadful callousness which, in extremity, becomes capable of every sort of bestial habit and crime, without fear, without pleasure, without horror, and without pity. It is in the blunt hand and the dead heart, in the diseased habit, in the hardened conscience, that men become vulgar."

And he goes on with words which should be printed in gold and set on the desk of every Cabinet Minister in the land to-day, sent by post to every member of Parliament, and blared through loud-speakers once a week to every voter in the land. These are the words:—

There is a mean wonder, as of a child who sees a juggler tossing golden balls. But do you think that the wonder is ignoble, or the sensation less, with which every human soul is called to watch the golden balls of heaven tossed through the night by the Hand that made them?

There is a mean curiosity, as of a child opening a forbidden door, or a servant prying into her master's business;—and a noble curiosity, questioning, in the front of danger, the source of the great river beyond the culture which partakes of both. I would have my boy learn all occurs is the quite too back-to learn—first aid, elementary cooking, how to make a fire, what to do with string.

So the anxiety is ignoble, with which you linger over the course and catastrophe of an idle tale; but do you think the anxiety is less, or greater, with which you watch, or ought to watch, the dealings of fate and destiny with the life of an agonised nation?

Alas! it is the narrowness, selfishness, minuteness of your sensation that you have to deplore in England at this day;—sensation which spends itself in bouquets and speeches: in revelings and junketings; in sham fights and gay puppet shows, while you can look on and see noble nations murdered, man by man, without an effort or a tear.

I suggest that the foregoing should be cabled in full, without the omission of a comma, to Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler, and to every crowned head, President, Prime Minister and Chancellor in the world.

Now how does this hang on to my theme? In this way. I would have my son taught to eschew the wrong vulgarity and espouse the right. I would want him to learn the best kind of commonness, the commonness which was the property of certain fishermen nineteen hundred years ago.

TOTTENHAM AND CHELSEA WIN CUP REPLAYS

NINE GAMES PLAYED

BARNESLEY SHOCK

STOKE BEATEN AT HOME

London, Jan. 15.—Only one F. A. Cup replay remains outstanding as a result of to-day's programme when nine third round matches were decided. There was nothing exceptional in the results apart from West Ham coming a cropper at Luton and the defeat on their own ground, after time, of Bolton.

Chelsea got through easily and Tottenham scraped the odd goal at Southend. Wednesday the holders advanced another stage, but Birmingham were somewhat surprisingly beaten before their own supporters. Millwall proved no match for Stoke on the latter's pitch, whereas Tranmere found home-ground advantage just sufficient to overcome Notts County.

Watford also scored a fine achievement by beating Cardiff on the Welshman's territory, while Crystal Palace crushed Brighton. Bristol Rovers collected two useful points at the expense of Swindon.

INTERPORT BADMINTON

Shanghai To Stage A Friendly Contest

Shanghai, Jan. 11.—The first interport badminton contest will be held in Shanghai during the Chinese New Year. It was announced by the Shanghai Badminton Association yesterday, word having been received from the North that a man's and women's team would arrive in Shanghai during that period.

The local Association is making arrangements to entertain the visitors with a series of games in a friendly tournament later.

Following the departure to Tientsin of Mr. G. G. Clarke, popular and energetic secretary of the Association, his duties have been taken over by Mr. B. V. de Senne, to whom all communications should be addressed to the S.M.C. Public Health Department, Room 219, 223 Hankow Road.

Rugby-Playing British Tars Beaten By Americans

Here is a scramble for the ball as members of the all-star American team picked for the occasion met and defeated the British rugby team made up of sailors from the cruiser H.M.S. Danae at San Diego, Calif. A grand pile up occurred when the ball was kicked high into the air with British tars and hometown athletes struggling for possession and just then the cameraman got busy.

CHANGES AT SHANGHAI TO BE REVEALED

Lee Wai-Tong Must Not Take Risks On Saturday

(By "Veritas")

Hongkong's only opportunity to judge the worthiness of the team chosen to represent the Colony in the annual Interport football match against Shanghai comes this Saturday, when our nominated combination oppose The Rest in a practice match but a few hours before sailing.

But it is unreasonable to expect too much from "Our Chosen" on Saturday. It is imperative that the players take no undue risks of injury, and the game must be regarded chiefly as a means of allowing them to get together to cultivate some team work which will be so necessary in the Interport.

an impressive showing and they should not permit the possibility of a few knocks to deter them from playing their normal game. They have been supplied with first rate opposition—a side good enough to extend the Interporters to the full.

One player who can pardonably take things a bit easy is Lee Wai-tong. Though perhaps it is not generally known, Lee has been suffering for some time from a dormant leg injury, which needs only the slightest provocation to make itself apparent. It happened in the Christmas Day Cup match between China and Scotland and it occurred last week in the game between S. China "A" and Kowloon. Lee certainly cannot afford to take risks, for his very presence in the Interport team means a tremendous moral advantage to the Colony.

SHANGHAI FEAR HIM
It is not unduly flattering him to state that Shanghai fear Lee Wai-tong, and now that they know he is in the team are probably not anticipating the outcome of the match with too much confidence.

Lee will therefore be well advised to play a fairly passive part on Saturday. He should find plenty of opportunity for practising those wide flung passes of his to the wings without troubling about the

Death Crash Of Track Ace

SPEEDWAY TEST TRAGEDY

Sydney, Dec. 22.—A famous speedway rider crashed to his death during the first Test between England and Australia at the Speedway Royal here to-day.

The victim of the accident was Frank Elms, the Australian track ace, while his team-mate, Billy Lamont, of Wimbledon, who is well-known on speedway tracks in England, was injured.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL
Elms, while broadsiding, crashed into the fence and Lamont was unable to avoid him.
Both riders were rushed to hospital, but Elms succumbed to his injuries.

Lamont's condition was stated to-night to be satisfactory.
Australia won the Test by 47 points to 25.—Reuter.

HOCKEY ENCOUNTERS

Two Friendly Games Played Yesterday

Two friendly hockey matches were played yesterday, in which the Hongkong Hockey Club and the East Lancashire were the winners.

The Club met a Y. M. C. A. team, and in a fairly even game, defeated it by two goals to nil. J. E. Potter and S. A. Fowler scored.
The East Lancs overcame the Radio Sports Club at Caroline Hill, and though the Radio, playing with four reserves, put up a strong resistance, the game ended with a score of 5-2. Robertson (2) Bolting (2) and Owen were the scorers for the soldiers, while Chowdhury netted two for the losers.

COLONY HOCKEY UNDER REVIEW

Hints To Our Lady Interport Players

HOW THEY CAN BE AT THEIR BEST

It is with a certain amount of trepidation and in the hope that the ladies will not doubt my good intentions, I submit below some hints to our Interporters on the eve of their departure for Shanghai.

Miss J. Lumson:—When clearing the ball it is well to bear in mind that feet are always safer than the hockey stick. Use your feet in preference. Remind your backs that they should not crowd the goalmouth and thus obstruct your vision, for it is highly important that you keep your eye on the ball.

Miss E. M. Gray:—When hard pressed you are inclined to kick the ball in attempting to stop it. It is well to remember when taking this risk that if the offence is committed inside the "D" a penalty corner results which may easily lead to a goal against you.

Miss A. Fowler:—Take your time when stopping the ball and try to avoid making anything like a blind swipe at it. The tendency to give away "sticks" may prove fatal.

Miss J. Wong:—You are one of the hardest workers in local hockey, but you are inclined to do too much in the first half. Try and take things easier and thus reserve your energy for the closing stages of the game. You may find your stamina of great necessity during such a period. Be careful of your positioning and give your pivot plenty of room in which to operate.

Miss M. Bryson:—It is as well not to pay too much attention to forward, but to endeavour to keep a check on your three inside opponents. Don't forget to feed your own forwards with ground passes.

Mrs. M. Bell:—Your spelling work is excellent, but try to avoid sending the ball too often to your centre-forward, as most of the opposition lies there. Feed your wing and keep the game well open.

Miss M. Smith:—It is imperative that you keep well out on the wing and avoid crowding your inside colleague. Don't be in too great a hurry to centre, but try to take the ball well down the field.

Miss S. Dalziel:—When taking the ball forward, keep it under control as much as possible, and always pass the ball to a player who is in a better position to score.

Miss P. Gittins:—Your inside forwards depend on you and your task is to keep them well supplied with passes. Endeavour to anticipate passes from the wings so that you are not slow off the mark. You may find it a big advantage to hit the ball harder than you have been doing.

Miss J. Adey:—When in possession of the ball you are prone to

St. Andrew's "A" Suffer Crushing Defeat

BY C.R.C. IN MEN'S DOUBLES BADMINTON LEAGUE MATCH

(By "Veritas")

St. Andrew's "A" leaders of the men's doubles division of the badminton league with a 100 per cent. record were made to bite the dust last evening when they figured in an extraordinary defeat at the Chinese Recreation Club. The C.R.C. walked away with all nine games, and only in two did they concede double figures.

The Saints were without F. A. Broadbridge and brought in M. Well against the Radio. The latter, playing with four reserves, put up a strong resistance, the game ended with a score of 5-2. Robertson (2) Bolting (2) and Owen were the scorers for the soldiers, while Chowdhury netted two for the losers.

all three games with the loss of ten aces.
It was a crushing verdict and once again establishes the fact that on their own court the C.R.C. are one of the most formidable teams in the league.

RECREIO HEAD TABLE

In consequence of the defeat of St. Andrew's and their own easy win against Kowloon-Tong Recreio "A" go to the top of the table. Recreio were hosts to Kowloon-Tong and naturally won at their ease. One of the most interesting features of the match was the good form shown by P. C. Leung and J. M. Fong, the losers' second pair. Fong brought off several clever backhand drop shots from the baseline and Leung concentrated on short shots from the net. They were not consistent enough or

CONDUCTED BY THE PILGRIM

Y.M.C.A. DROP BEHIND

CENTRAL BRITISH IN FORM

DESERVED WIN

The Y.M.C.A. so seriously jeopardised their chances of winning the Caer Clark Cup by losing to C.B.A. last week, that it will require blunders on the part of both the Hongkong Ladies and the Central British Association for the "Y" to stand any hope of finishing-as champions.

C.B.A. deservedly won by two clear goals after an uninteresting first half which was void of anything approaching good hockey. One goal, however, was scored during this period, Miss M. Smith being the marksman.

The second half saw a big improvement, one of the features being Miss Smith's, second goal which was easily the best of the match.

Mrs. White as leader, with Miss Rousseau on the right wing were the pick of the winners' attack which was always livelier and more progressive than that of the "Y".

Miss Bryson played her usual strong game at centre-half and was splendidly flanked on the right by Miss Iris Woolley. Miss P. Woolley and Miss Walker were brilliant in defence, while Miss Best in goal was very capable and reliable, and effected two very smart saves under strong pressure.

Lacking the assistance of Miss Sybil Dalziel, the Y.M.C.A. played a very disjointed type of game and were disappointing. Mrs. Read at centre-forward could not get going and Mrs. Brown at inside right also had an off day. Positional changes were attempted in the second half, but they proved disastrous. Miss Fowler, who moved to inside, left appeared to be over-anxious and missed a certain goal. Miss Thompson worked exceedingly hard at centre-half, but she paid rather too much attention to Mrs. White and neglected Miss Smith who found she had plenty of room and time in which to make her movements.

Miss P. McCaw was prominent at right back, but when Mrs. Read moved from attack to defence it was obvious that she was too slow for the Smith-Rousseau combination.

CLUB DE RECREIO LOSE AGAIN

No Match For St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's had a fairly easy time against the Recreio, beating them by three goals to one. Miss Gittins again led the winners' forward line with enterprise and skill and was responsible for all three goals. Miss F. Wong and Miss Booker gave their skipper the necessary support, while Miss J. and Miss G. White were as safe as houses in defence.

For the losers Miss C. Silva at centre-forward gave a dashing display, but was inadequately supported by her wings. However she fittingly scored the Recreio's only goal.

Miss C. Osmund was outstanding in defence while Miss E. Xavier at right half was a hard worker.

In spite of their remarkable success the Saints gave the impression that the defence could afford to tighten up for future matches.

INDIAN TEST

Australian Team Captained By Rajah Of Patiala

Calcutta, Jan. 15.—The Australian and Indian official test match opened here to-day, when the Maharajah of Patiala, who personally brought the Australian team to India, captained the Australian side. His son captained the home team.

The home side won the toss and opened the batting, which reached 88 runs for no wicket at lunch time.—Reuter's Bulletin.

poke it ahead of you and to lose control. Hit it with the flat of your stick and your speed will allow you to do the rest.

Miss M. Westcott:—When running down the wing turn well into your left and centre the ball as soon as you are being challenged. Be careful of offside infringements, for these can ruin any brilliant movement.

To the Team:—Go all out for a win and don't forget to bring the "White" Shield back with you. Hongkong wishes you the best of luck.

THE BRAUN CUP

Miss Brockler Strikes Brilliant Form

The Diocesan Girls' School, by far the superior team, defeated the C.B.A. by four clear goals. Miss H. Brockler scored three of them in the second half. This brilliant young leader is at present playing splendid hockey and will be making a name for herself in local hockey circles in the future.

Miss da Rosa and Miss M. Churn also showed up well in the attack. Miss A. Chubb and Miss N. Wicheil were the pick of a sound defence.

The C.B.A. seemed rather weak as a team and were at no stage impressive. It is plain that an all-round improvement is necessary before the team can expect successes to come their way.

MRS. WILLS-MOODY VOTED SECOND

AMERICANS WHO STAGED MOST SUCCESSFUL COME-BACKS

The story-book rise of James J. Braddock from the relief rolls to the world heavyweight boxing championship has been labelled by American sports experts as the greatest comeback of 1935. The year was filled with many spectacular returns to form, but participants in a recent sports poll accorded the rugged and courageous New Jersey veteran prime recognition, and placed Helen Wills Moody, already voted the outstanding woman athletic performer of the year, in the runner-up role.

Braddock and Mrs. Moody, who came out of a two-year retirement and won the Wimbledon tennis championship, were involved in a spirited contest by sports experts and it was not until the last few votes were counted that the fighter established his final margin of popularity. All told, Braddock polled 180 points to 171 for Mrs. Moody.

THREE VOTES CAST

The vote was polled on a 3-2-1 point basis with experts listing their three "comeback" choices in the order of preference. Braddock was a pronounced favourite in the matter of first places. Forty-six voters put him at the top of their lists, while Mrs. Moody drew 31 three-point votes.

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, Boston Red Sox southpaw pitcher, and Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, who won the national golf title for the first time in five years and in a deadlock for third place, each receiving 43 points. Suffering from a sore arm, Grove was a "bust" last year, but he regained his form in the 1935 campaign, won twenty games and set a record by compiling the league's best earned-run average for the seventh time.

Tommy Hitchcock, the polo player, and Charley Gelbert, St. Louis Cardinals' infielder, two athletes whose injuries it was feared might wreck their careers, were included among the first ten leading comeback performers. Hitchcock polled up eighth in the voting with nine points, while Gelbert, who almost shot one foot off in a hunting accident a couple of years ago, was tenth with six points.

Tabulation of the poll on the year's outstanding individual comebacks:

1. James J. Braddock, world heavyweight boxing champion 180
2. Helen Wills Moody, Wimbledon tennis champion 171
3. Robert Moses Grove, Boston Red Sox southpaw pitcher 43
4. Glenna Collett Vare, national women's golf champion 43
5. Wilmer Allison, national men's tennis champion 28
6. Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight boxing champion 14
7. Alvin (General) Crowder, Detroit Tigers' pitcher 11
8. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., world's only 10-goal polo player 9
9. Wesley Ferrell, Boston Red Sox pitcher 7
10. Charles Gelbert, St. Louis Cardinals' infielder 6

Five points each, Goose Goslin, Detroit outfielder; Charley Root, Chicago Cubs' pitcher; and Ozzie Simmons, Iowa halfback. Three points each, Earl Derringer, Cincinnati pitcher; John Revolta, Professional golfer, and Walter Hagen, Sox pitcher. Madison (Matty) Bell, Southern Methodist football coach; Andy Pliny, Notre Dame halfback. One point each, Ted Lyons, White Sox pitcher; Mark Koenig, New York Giants' infielder; Babe Siebert, Boston Bruins' hockey player; Big Bill Tilden, professional tennis; Marvin Nelson, distance swimmer.

NEXT TO TOP OF THE WORLD—Mrs. Wills-Moody, tennis champ.

MAMAK LEAGUE

K.I.T.C. WIN EASILY

ST. ANDREW'S MAKE START

The Kowloon Indians won two easy points in the Mamak League on Sunday when they beat St. Andrew's by five clear goals. The champions did not give of their best despite the result, as the Saints were somewhat weak opposition, this being their first match of the season.

A. Khan, Awtar Singh, Pinto and Souza formed a dangerous and penetrative attack, while Tara Singh, Karnail Singh and Kishan Singh were prominent in defence. St. Andrew's forward line was ragged, C. Angus being the only player to control the ball. With plenty of patient practice Angus will develop into a good inside forward.

The half back line worked with a will but not always to the best advantage. A. S. Elias was well to the fore and played a conspicuous game throughout. E.H.P. White gave a good account of himself and was ably supported by F. Y. Wong. The latter's brother, Dick Wong, unhappily was off form and played rather faultily between the sticks. It is a pity St. Andrew's have got so far behind in their league fixtures, but I think it is their own fault, and they are going to suffer an added disadvantage when Bliss leaves with the Interport football team for Shanghai.

LOCAL YACHTING

In yesterday's sweepstake races the "A" Division event was won by Major F. C. Booty, in True Blue, and the Mixed Classes event went to Captain P. Trimble in Gael.

The course was, Kowloon Rocks (S), Channel Rocks (S), Rumsey Shoal (P), Mark on Line (P), and Channel Rocks (S), a distance of 8.3 miles.

can make better use of such passes than anybody else in Hongkong. But if he is starved he cannot be expected to pull his weight. Then again both Talbot and Leonard have to remember that if Lee is to score goals he must be given the through-the-middle pass. Both players know how to make them, and if they work in together intelligently there is every reason to expect this trio to score a lot of goals, both on Saturday and in the Interport.

varied enough to worry the Recreio couples, but it showed that the two players are fast improving.

Eliot Hall "A" scored another win, Fire Brigade being their victims. Once again E. L. H. Shute, together with W. Stoker played masterly badminton and not only did they beat K. Y. Lee and K. S. Lee, but they scored C. O. Lee and C. S. Hong to a "settled" game. The other Brigade pairs were not in the same class and Eliot Hall finally won by eight games to one.

C.R.C. v. ST. ANDREW'S

S. W. Liang and Gordon Lum (C.R.C.) beat A. E. P. Guest and M. Well 21-9; beat E. F. Fincher and H. Kow 21-9; beat R. H. Wong and F. V. Wong 21-4.

ELIOT HALL "A" v. FIRE BRIGADE

SERIAL STORY—

BARGAIN BRIDIE

by KATHARINE HAVLAND-TAYLOR

Coldly Barrett asked, "Why didn't you keep Hutton?"
Ellnor flushed; her eyes wavered. She had sent the chauffeur home because she didn't want anyone to know about her going to see Philip. She had murmured something about uncertainty of plans and dismissed Hutton.

"I had some shopping to do," she stammered, "and you know how difficult it is to park cars near—"
"I fear I quite understand," he responded levelly, crisply. She raised surprised eyes and, as she saw his face, her colour receded.
"I must remind you," Barrett went on inflexibly, "that I told you several weeks ago I would not have you indulging in flirtations."
"Why, Barrett?" she stammered.
"You were with Bobby Telfair all afternoon," he stated.
"But I wasn't!" She was stung by the injustice.

"Did you have a pleasant time with Bobby?" he asked.
"I had a lovely afternoon," she answered, not quite truthfully. She would have gone on to tell him that she had gone elsewhere but he looked at his watch, murmured an excuse and left the room.

Alone, she stood with tears brimming in her eyes and teeth set on her lower lip. Such a reception after the morning!

She drank bitterly at the thought. What a fool she had been to think a kiss from him could mean anything, when once before he had shown how lightly he considered such a caress.

At the end of the stipulated year she would work. She would not take a cent from him. She wished she could be working now. She thought she would have time to think, to imagine what life might have been for her if she had had the power to make him love her and to hold that love.

She did her best to eat. She didn't want the servants to know how utterly Barrett's chill, disapproving eyes had crushed her. In spite of determination she could do no more than dally with her food. It choked and sickened her.

Having eaten, she went to the drawing room, sat down at the piano and played the gayest tunes. Higgins, and played the gayest tunes. Higgins, and played the gayest tunes. Higgins, and played the gayest tunes.

On this morning the butler concluded the quarrel had been worse than he thought. Barrett and Higgins, he mused, spoke at all. The evening meal was the only one they ate together. Higgins looked pitifully unhappy and Barrett's expression was grimly blank. He left the house almost immediately after the meal and she made no attempt to entertain herself.

Instead she sat in her dimly-lit alcove, staring ahead, realizing she had been a fool again and that love could show the way to agony. "Never again!" she vowed to herself. "Never again!"

Toward the close of a cold and dismal April Doctor Moran ordered Ellnor's father to a milder climate. Alken was chosen and Bentwell Stafford with two nurses and Ellnor departed.

To leave New York was a relief to the girl. She had suffered acutely since the afternoon Bobby Telfair had picked her up on a street corner where she waited for a taxi to take her home.

"Happy?" Bobby had asked hollowly after she had urged him to hurry if he could because she was late. "Very," Ellnor answered with complete sincerity. She had not been happy since. Sometimes she thought wistfully that Bobby Telfair who was dull and unexciting had at least been kind and fair. He was not hot and then cold, as Barrett. No, that wasn't quite true. Barrett was no longer warm of heart; he was steadily cold.

Their chess games had been abandoned. The last time she had suggested a game he had said brusquely that he hadn't time. He no longer came to the drawing room at the tea hour to talk over events of the day and hear her play. They had not been together since that miserable afternoon. They had gone once to Bessie Throppe's for a heavy, two o'clock Sunday dinner. There Barrett and gone back to masquerading but he had done it so clumsily that over time she had wondered if perhaps something was wrong.

Ellnor had tried to fill her days and for the most part had succeeded. She had grown thin and her eyes met Barrett's wistfully when he looked her way, which was rarely. He feared her and what she might do to him. He knew her, he told himself a hundred times a day. There was no excuse for him to be taken in again, only to be haunted by her and dreams of her. She lied so glibly and easily about where she had been and what she had done.

Each time she was out of the house he was sure she was with Bobby Telfair. Marcia had seen them together and spoken of it to Barrett in a casual, light way. It seemed to Ellnor that each time she stepped from the door she was sure to meet Bobby somewhere and be obliged to speak a word or two to him. Barrett was certain that she went to lower New York to spend hours with Telfair.

He plunged into work with a zest that was fanatical—writing, arranging new exhibits, appraising them. He helped Ellnor with his plans for an expedition, taking over all the dull details such as ordering tin dippers, pickaxes and soap. He found time to write a series of articles. He superintended plans for the gallery of a friend who had long wanted a suitable home for his paintings, bits of jade, porcelains and such. And yet he couldn't keep busy enough to forget his heartache.

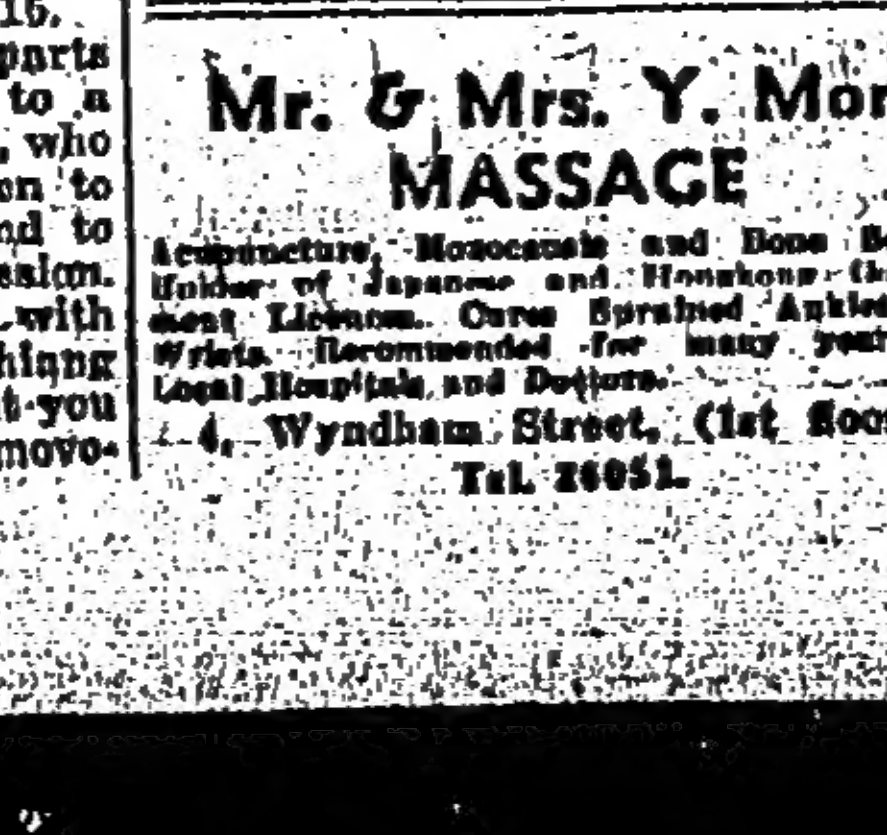

He thought he would feel some relief with Ellnor away. He found, instead, endless worry and conjecture in the silence of the house which seemed cold no matter what the temperature, he wondered what she might be doing. He wished the year they had agreed their marriage should endure would come to an end. The name of Colin had always been kept free from scandal. Marcia's affair had been underhanded and cheap but legal enough. She had abandoned Trevelyan with her when he found she could not give him the wealth he had supposed was hers. Lon had died before Marcia's and Barrett's father left them his fortune.

Ellnor was aware that Alken was a very pleasant place. The sunlit hills were warm and the air soft, the hills and valleys green and the view from the house they had taken, charming.

Her father was carried to the terrace and sat there for long afternoons. Ellnor sat beside him reading yards she did not sense, smiling at him when they paused to chat, wondering what Barrett was doing and whether he missed her at all. She tried to seem normal and light-hearted, hoping the doctors Barrett directed to her for effect—would hold some suggestion that his coldness was thawing. They never did.

"It's beautiful here," said Bentwell one afternoon. "I don't know when I've been so contented—so at peace!" He was still too weak to think about others or he would have seen his daughter's misery. He was so deep in anxiety. And when she spoke of it to either of the nurses, avoiding her eyes and murmuring something about "time." Science knows when human batteries are low and waning but science does not always tell.

AIR TRAGEDYU.S. LINER CRASHES IN SWAMP

New York, Jan. 15. Seventeen persons, fourteen of whom were passengers and three members of the crew, were killed when the huge American Air Lines trans-continental liner, "Southern," bound for Los Angeles from New York, crashed in a swamp two and a half miles from Goodwin, Arkansas, last night.

The plane reported at 7.18 p.m. last evening to Memphis, headquarters of the company, stating "Position 25 miles west Memphis, flying 3,000 feet. Scattered clouds at 4,500; temperature 55 degrees." No further message was radioed.

At 8 p.m., George Jones, a farmer, heard an aeroplane motor sputter and suddenly all was silent. Then, a few seconds later, he heard a crash as the machine plunged into the wooded swamp some distance away.

He at once telephoned to Memphis, where the alarm was raised, and search parties were organized at Goodwin and Forest City which set out at once to comb the countryside.

They found the machine about two and a half miles from Goodwin lying in five feet of water. So great had been the impact that three of the occupants were thrown some distance from the plane while the mangled bodies of the others were found tangled in the wreckage, and half submerged in the oozing mud.

Ambulances were immediately summoned to the scene of the disaster, but all the occupants were beyond human aid.

The bodies were carried back to Memphis.

List of Dead

The dead are:
Mrs. Samuel Horowitz, Mrs. B. Horowitz, and Seba Horowitz, 5 years, all of Boston.
Julius Cahn, of Los Angeles.
Charles Altschul, of Glendale, California.
F. C. Hart, of New York.
Mrs. J. H. Grennill, of Knoxville.
R. A. MacNair and W. R. Dyes, of Littlebrook.
Sam Schwartz, of Atlantic City.
W. S. Harbuck and A. D. Chernus, of Memphis.
J. L. Porter, of Philadelphia.
H. W. Platt, of Laredo, Texas.
Jerry Marshall, pilot; Glenn Freedland, co-pilot; and Perle Gasparini, stewardess, all of Fort Worth, Texas.
None of the dead are British.

The air liner left New York at 12.35 p.m. and halted to load and discharge passengers at Washington, Philadelphia, Nashville and Memphis, leaving the last named town at 6.30 p.m.—United Press.

Cause of Smash

New York, Jan. 15. The air liner was a Douglas twin-engined machine, and not of the V-type, as it was stated. The crash was due to the loss of one of the propellers. An immediate investigation is being undertaken in conjunction with the Department of Commerce.

The death toll is the largest in the annals of American heavier-than-air aviation. Searchers were obliged to struggle through scrub and mud for four hours before finding the wreckage and bodies scattered over one hundred yards and us.—Reuter.

Recent Crashes

This is the third major air disaster to occur within the week. It recalled that a Sabena passenger air-liner bound from Brussels to London crashed at Tatesfield, Kent, on December 10. Seven passengers, the pilot and the crew of three were killed.

On New Year's Eve the Imperial Airways' service to Khartoum was wrecked in the Mediterranean while proceeding from Crete to Alexandria. Eleven persons were killed, the pilot, Captain Wilson, being the only survivor.

ITALIAN TOBACCOINCREASED PLANTING TO BE UNDERTAKEN IN ERITREA

Rome, Jan. 14. Italy has become virtually independent of foreign tobacco supplies. Government figures revealed to-day.

Happily enough for Italians who are heavy smokers, sanctions which do not affect their supply of cigarettes and cigars.

During 1934 only 10.43 per cent. of the total tobacco used by the Government monopoly was imported from foreign countries. The state monopoly on tobacco produced the Government an annual income of approximately 4,000,000,000 (b) or about one-fifth of the average yearly national budget.

The state monopoly has complete charge of all manufacture and sale of tobacco in the country. Prices are set by the monopoly and the quality of tobacco established. The Government supervised group has decreed that Italian cigarettes of a good brand shall sell for 5 lire (about 41 cents) for a package of 20, and that imported cigarettes shall sell for 7 lire (88 to 89 cents) a package.

In 1919 Italy imported about 80 per cent. of her tobacco supplies. By 1929 the country had become second only to Greece as a tobacco producing nation in Europe. In 1922 the number of hectares devoted to tobacco growing totalled 22,395 yielding a crop of 231,166 quintals. Last year the area devoted to tobacco numbered 35,199 hectares from which 412,374 quintals were produced.

Italy's supplies of tobacco are being further augmented by her East African colonies. Eritrea in 1935 produced 154,000 pounds of tobacco of good quality. Libya also produced splendid tobacco which is blended with Turkish blends to produce especially fine cigarettes.

Increased plantings of tobacco are to be undertaken in Eritrea where certain soils and climate are especially suited to tobacco growing.—United Press.

HEROIN PILLSFURTHER EVIDENCE BY DEFENDANTS

The evidence of the second and fourth accused was taken at the resumed hearing of the charge against three men and a woman, of possession of heroin pills and drugs at No. 15, Caroline Hill, second floor, on November 19. The case was heard by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

The defendants are Chiu Kau, Lo Shing, Li So and Li Tat-shing and a woman, Ho Ying, and the third accused, with possession of 35,000 heroin pills on the second floor of No. 15, Caroline Hill on November 19 last year, possession of 6½ ounces of codeine phosphate and 1½ ounces of strychnine and possession of 17 ounces of heroin.

Mr. J. B. Prentiss, Assistant Crown Solicitor, is conducting the case for the prosecution. Mr. F. H. Loney is appearing on behalf of Mr. Li So and Mr. S. Ng Quinn for the other defendants. At a previous hearing Mr. Ng Quinn had pleaded guilty on behalf of the first defendant only.

Accused's Evidence

Giving evidence, Lo Shing, the second accused, stated he knew the first defendant. On November 19, he was chatting near the door on the second floor of No. 15, Caroline Road, when he heard a voice calling an old man to open the door. First defendant did so, and two Chinese police officers accompanied by Europeans entered. Witness stated he was first tied with some cord, then the third defendant and finally the first. The European officer searched the cubicle, and asked questions.

Witness denied knowing the third and fourth defendants. He did not know there were heroin pills or drugs in the house and had no reason to suspect any. He did not give instructions to anyone to make a cupboard.

Cross-examined by Mr. Prentiss, witness stated that between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. that day he was in the house of a friend at No. 66, Lee Garden Street. When arrested at the other defendants were also in No. 15, Caroline Road. Third defendant was in European clothes and was fully dressed.

Woman's Version

The next witness was Ho Ying, the fourth defendant. She stated she arrived in the Colony on November 19 from the country, and went to live at No. 84, Percival Street where her uncle, the first defendant, lived. Some time later, first defendant asked her to find another flat for him, and witness thought the flat at Caroline Road was suitable. She informed him, and he gave her money to rent the floor. He also told witness to get coolies to move the furniture from No. 84, Percival Street.

Witness denied knowing there were heroin pills and drugs at either the Percival Street or Caroline Road addresses.

Before the Police arrived on November 19, the third defendant came to her at Caroline Road. Witness had asked him to come as she wanted to hear from him about her husband, who had been parted from her for a considerable period. Second accused also came to the flat. Witness went on to corroborate the third defendant's evidence as to what took place in the flat.

After cross-examination by Mr. Prentiss, the hearing was adjourned to 2.30 p.m. on January 22, when the cross-examination will be continued.

NO CASE TO ANSWERALLEGED THEFT OF SCRAP RAILS FROM SIDING

Stating that there was no case to answer, Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones, discharged Yuen Kai, aged 46, who was described as a buyer, of the Fuk Hing Cheong marine store, when he appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon charged with receiving 32 pieces of iron rails which were suspected of having been stolen from the Kowloon Canton Railway on January 4.

Mr. G. S. Hugh Jones, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Crist, appeared for the defendant and entered a plea of not guilty.

Detective-Sergeant D. Davies for the prosecution stated that about 9 a.m. on January 4, Chinese detective CR2, Lui Luk, received information that a man in a junk, the number of which was unknown, had pulled alongside the wharf just out from Holt's Wharf and had removed 32 scrap iron rails. The detective also received information that the rails had been sold to the defendant's marine store.

Accompanied by the detective, Sergeant Davies went to the store and found the rails in a godown.

Corroborative evidence was given by Mr. R. Bevan, Permanent Way Inspector of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, stated that he had identified the rails at defendant's godown at Yau-mai. Of the 32 rails only one bore the mark K.C.R. The remainder were unmarked and witness could only identify them by their length. They were between seven and nine feet long and were known as Leigh and Orange rails.

There was a siding near Holt's Wharf where there used to be two stacks of rails. They had been left there for about a year. They were scrap rails and were 35 lbs to the yard, which was the standard weight of the rails used by the K.C.R.

Witness further stated that scrap rails were sold at intervals by tender. The last time scrap rails were sold was about two years ago.

The prosecuting officer stated that that was all the evidence the prosecution could bring.

In that case, stated his Worship, there was no case for the defendant to answer.

Mr. Hugh Jones agreed, and stated that his client could produce a bill showing that he had purchased 24,000 scrap rails from the K.C.R. in 1935.

CANTON QUIETREGIMENTS READY FOR EMERGENCY

Canton, Jan. 15. Although martial law is still enforced the situation is gradually returning to normal. To ensure absolute safety the authorities have recalled two regiments of gendarmes to the City from the border. A quiet situation now prevails in all schools, with the students continuing their desertion.—Reuter.

Leave for Hongkong

Canton, Jan. 15. Several hundred students of the schools and universities here have left for Hongkong since the riots at Lai Chee Wen Road on Monday afternoon. Many of the students have left because they were unwilling to enlist with the military supervised National Salvation Volunteer Corps. Once enlisted, students will be put to military training, which is expected to keep them busy during the winter vacation. Other students have left the city because their parents feared they might again be involved in street demonstrations.

The martial law commander-in-chief has divided the City and its suburbs into four sections, each garrisoned by troops or gendarmes. The Peace Preservation Corps take up duties within the City Proper, Honam and Tungshan residential districts and Shekpi, including the campus of the Sun Yat-sen National University. Shaho and Yintong suburbs are looked after by the Yintong military academy cadets themselves. Between Wonsing and Satchuen suburbs a full regiment of the training division has taken up patrol duties day and night. At least 10,000 troops have been concentrated within Canton and its suburbs. This big force is considered more than adequate to preserve peace in case of any Communist or patriotic uprising, as apart from the troops there are hundreds of armed policemen, gendarmes and the Peace Preservation Corps.

Martial Law Remains

Reporting the students' riot the Canton Daily Sun says that the authorities declared martial law as a precautionary measure against a possible uprising by Communists. It was difficult to pass through the streets at night after 10 p.m.

Buses running between the city and Sun Yat-sen University were suspended. Gendarmes were guarding the university compound, and no person was allowed to enter or get out. It was possible that the gendarmes were coming out the students' elements. The majority of the students in the Sun Yat-sen University have nothing to do with the so-called anti-Japanese agitation but only a few of them are under the influence of sinister schemers and radical elements.

Examination Interrupted

Reporting the student riot on Monday afternoon the Central Press account says that the students of Sun Yat-sen University also visited the Engineering School of Hsiang Chin University. The students of the latter were then taking their final examinations, but were forced by the former to leave school and join in the parade. A minor conflict occurred near Sai-wa Road with casual unknown, but there were no casualties.

Turmoil Dies Down

Canton, Jan. 15. Having failed to discover any reactionary literature or other evidence in the dormitories of the students at Shek Pai, the gendarmes this morning permitted professors and students to enter and leave the Sun Yat-sen University after "blackading" it for 24 hours. The gendarmes inside the university compound have also been withdrawn.

Two politicians are said to have stirred up the students in order to secure control of the University, but martial law forbids any more student agitations or parades.

Emergency measures will be continued to-night as a precaution. A foreign doctor was allowed last night to motor through streets to the First Group Army headquarters. Foreign residents in Tungshan, Honglok and Pakhoktung remained indoors after 9 p.m., although the curfew hour begins at 10 p.m.

A member of the Anti-Traitors League who was present during the shooting at Lee Chi Wan on last Monday was seriously wounded in the head and is not expected to live.—Special.

Protection for Patriots

Canton, Jan. 14. Apart from asking Mr. Chow Lu not to resign from the chancellorship of Sun Yat-sen University, Mr. Wang Shi-chieh, the Minister of Education, stated in a telegram that genuine patriotic student activities should be protected, while flagrant action must be suppressed.—Union News.

Belliose Resolution

Among the thirteen resolutions passed by the Kwangtung Provincial Assembly on Tuesday in Canton was one suggesting that the Central Government in Nanking be urged to concentrate all material resources and military strength and be prepared to fight the enemy country of China, says the Central Press.

INDIAN COLD WEATHERSIR ERIC TEICHMAN DELAYED BY PLANE

New Delhi, Jan. 15. Severe weather in the Himalayas prevented the arrival of Sir Eric Teichman, First Counselor of the British Embassy in China. The Viceroys' Avro machine, which left Rawalpindi for Gilgit yesterday, returned without completing the flight owing to ice formations on the wings. The plane will make another attempt to-day.—Reuter.

WIFE LOSES DIVORCE BATTLE AFTER FOUR YEARS

A four-year-long legal battle over a divorce decree was finally ended in London last month in the chamber of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the highest tribunal of the Empire.

The story starts in 1931. A Canadian judge granted a decree against Mrs. Cora Lillian McPherson, wife of Mr. Oran Leo McPherson, then Minister of Public Works for Alberta. The suit was heard in the judges' law library at Edmonton, Alberta.

After the decree had been made absolute, Mr. McPherson married Mrs. Mattern, wife of Mr. Leroy Mattern, whom he had cited as co-respondent. Mrs. Mattern had divorced Mr. Mattern on the ground of his misconduct with Mrs. McPherson.

After Mr. McPherson's remarriage, Mrs. McPherson, pleading that her husband's suit had not been heard in open court, appealed to the Supreme Court of Alberta to have the decree against her declared void. Her appeal failed.

She now carried that appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Three Lords of the Judicial Committee delivered their judgment.

"Time Had Lapsed"

Lord Blanesburgh, their spokesman, said that Mr. McPherson married again long after the decree had been made absolute, and long after the time of any appeal had expired.

It was then for the first time alleged that the trial of the suit in the judges' library was not a suit in open court.

The Committee affirmed their belief in the bona fides of the judge. They believed it was unhealthy notoriety rather than normal publicity that the judge really desired to restrict.

The trial of undetected suits in the judges' library, with its warning-off notice—a brass plate on the door marked "Private"—although perhaps infrequent, was not unknown.

There was no way to correct this tendency more effectively. Lord Blanesburgh said, then, to require that the trial of these cases should always take place in the fullest sense, in open court.

The Committee were, however, of opinion that the decree in question was voidable only, and not void; and that the time for voiding it had long gone by.

They were dealing with a decree pronounced after a serious trial, free from every defect in procedure. To say that such a decree was void would seem to be out of the question.

The appeal was dismissed.

Australia To Spend Two Million On Defence

IN accordance with Imperial defence plans, Australia is spending more than £2,000,000 this year, extra on her navy, army, air development, coast defence and munition manufacture. The total expenditure this financial year, will be £7,352,399, or nearly 23/- per head of the population.

Two new ships will be added to the navy, the cruiser Sydney and the sloop Yarra. Navy personnel will be increased from 4,080 to 4,172. More oil fuel tanks are to be built.

Coastal artillery, units will be increased, and bigger guns will be mounted. Anti-aircraft guns and searchlights will be manufactured, and land forces will be mechanised, according to Austral News.

New Air Force squadrons are to be formed, and more machines bought. An increased amount of £50,000 is being provided for civil aviation development, including the enlargement of aerodromes and the extension of night landing facilities. There are already 161 public aerodromes.

PARENTS OF 10 GIRLS WANT MORE GIRLS

AS Mr. Milburn Lietz, who is thirty-four, and his wife, who is thirty-three, have always wanted a son and have just been disappointed for the tenth time, they are now "going to try to set up a record for girls."

So said Mr. Lietz to-day, in the intervals between serving customers in his shop in Burlington, Iowa.

He was asked whether he and his wife hoped to have any more children. His reply was: "More children? You bet your life! But we have changed our ambition now we have ten daughters."

"Glad Of Them"

"We always wanted a boy. We wanted boys and girls in the family, but hoping and praying for a boy has not done any good."

"So now we are going ahead to try to set up a record for girls."

"We don't believe in birth control. We are members of the Roman Catholic Church. We are glad to have babies. My wife and I feel exactly the same way about them."

Mr. Lietz is one of a family of six; Mrs. Lietz one of a family of four.

"HAND WORLD OVER TO WOMEN"

—Says Dr. Alington
FORMER Eton headmaster, Dr. A. C. Alington, Dean of Durham, told girls at Cheshire High School, Macclesfield, on Speech Day recently what he thinks of

WOMEN

All practical business is performed by women.

They run our homes with great success. If we were logical we should carry it further and say, "As they manage the affairs of the home they would manage the affairs of the State much better."

MEN

Consider what a mess politicians have got the world into. It would be a good plan for men to hand over affairs of State to women.

We could then pursue our own natural inclination for art, for we are the artistic sex.

CAR TELEPHONE

A new invention has been demonstrated in Rome, a wireless telephone whereby those driving in motor cars can phone where they wish.

Psychological Moment?— There's None

THE popular expression, "the psychological moment," is neither psychological nor a period of time.

This statement was made by Dr. A. H. Martin, honorary director of the Australian Institute of Industrial Psychology, when a city business man asked him for a definition of the term.

"One of our salesmen has been canvassing a firm for months and has been unable to obtain any business," said the businessman. "This morning he arrived at what he described as the psychological moment and secured an order. Is that the right term?"

Dr. Martin pointed out that "moment" as used in connection with a psychological reaction in current speech is made in reference to the most suitable time for a happening.

"Actually the psychological moment refers to the force that certain ideas have through their importance in relation to other matters of interest," he said. "In this case moment is drive or weight, and not a modicum of time. In popular speech the confusion of the words is really a form of pun."

"Often a salesman makes numerous calls and is backed by a big advertising campaign and when at last he makes the sale, attributes it to seeing the client at the right psychological moment."

Cumulative Effect

"In reality this is purely the backing up of the effects of his calls, so that each subsequent call enjoys the accumulation of impressions made."

"The perseverance of the salesman wears away all resistance," added Dr. Martin.

Dr. Martin added that psychological moment was mostly a matter of conscience.

PROF. SHELLSHEAR AND THE PEKING MAN

LONDON SHOWS INTEREST

The recent announcement in Hongkong by Professor Shellshear that further remains of Peking man have been discovered in China coincided with the receipt in England of the first complete report on all the remains which have been hitherto found of this million-year-old race of men.

In place of the two skulls and odd bones and teeth with which anthropologists have previously had to be content, a classified description is given of the recovered remains of 24 individuals, ranging in age from five years to over fifty.

The theory is advanced that the cave-dwellers of early China were cannibals with a "weakness" for children, the remains discovered representing head-hunters' trophies.

The conclusion is reached that Peking man may have been the direct fore-runner of the "low-brow" Neanderthal race, which lived in Europe between 50,000 and 20,000 B.C.

In spite of his bloodthirsty habits, in certain peculiarities of his jaw, Peking man shows definite resemblances to the modern Mongolian race-group, and particularly to the Eskimo.

The report represents the first work in this field of Dr. Franz Weidenreich, the new director of Peking man investigations for the Geological Survey of China. The making of further finds is announced in an Exchange Telegraph message.

Remains of Peking man have all come from the limestone caves of Chou Kou Tien, south-east of Peking, where a tooth, the first proof of human occupation, was found in 1927. It is remarkable that from this single find Professor Davidson Black, Dr. Weidenreich's predecessor at Peking, was able to draw the correct conclusion that he was dealing with a hitherto unknown race of man.

Every Stage of Childhood
The catalogue, as now completed by Dr. Weidenreich, comprises ten children, two adolescents, and twelve adults, the sexes being evenly represented in each case.

Practically every stage of childhood growth seems to have fallen victim to these prehistoric cannibals. According to Dr. Weidenreich's classification, there is one child of five, one of 5-6, one of 7-8, four of 8-9, one of 9-10, one of 11, one of 13-14, and two adolescents of 14-18.

In addition to a man of over fifty, two others, both women, are described as "surely old". Dr. Weidenreich's most serious doubt is as to whether his method of "sex determination" may not have led him to overestimate the number of females.

His conclusion that the remains are cannibalistic is based on the fact that they consist almost exclusively of jaws, teeth, and fragments of brain cases, and were in most cases crushed or broken before fossilisation began.

"It is impossible," he comments, "that the bodies of at least 24 individuals could have been so completely smashed that nothing else remains."

Dr. Weidenreich also concludes that there is no evidence of the simultaneous existence of any more developed race, who might be supposed to have preyed on the race whose remains have now been discovered.

HE COINED WORD ANZAC

MAJOR A. T. WHITE, an English member of General Birdwood's staff in Egypt, who coined the word "Anzac" as an official code word, has died in England.

Early in the war, Major Wagstaff, of Birdwood's staff, called several of his clerks together and said, "We have to supply a code word for our cable address."

Near the door of the office was stacked a number of stationery boxes, bearing the initials "A. and N.Z.A.C."—Australian and New Zealand Army Corps.

The initials caught Major White's eye. "How about Anzac?" he successfully suggested.

covered, and, therefore, that Peking man, being civilised enough to have the use of fire, was also capable of preying on members of his own race.

Extraordinary Value
"There is nothing comparable anywhere to this numerous collection of individuals of such an early race," Sir Grafton Elliot-Smith commented to a representative of the Morning Post last night.

"Pitifully man in England, and also Java man, are represented by the remains of only single individuals. It is of extraordinary value to have a group of people to study instead of only one. The great problem is always to determine how far the characteristics of any one individual can be taken as those of the race. One man, for all we can tell, might have been abnormal. This report should also help to restore confidence in the work of anthropologists. From one tooth, Professor Davidson Black postulated a new race. His conclusion was supported by the finding of the original Peking skull and subsequent remains. Now this fuller report on a larger number of individuals comes to bear out our main picture of Peking man."

Wellington, N.Z. Jan. 1.
A badly tattered German Red Cross Flag, in the possession of a resident will ultimately be placed in the Dominion War Memorial Museum. The flag was taken from the German Hospital at Grevelin, which was the township immediately before Bannan, on the route of the New Zealand Division's advance. The Hospital was one of the first to be taken during the advance. It was there that paper bandages were taken for the first time and were immediately put into use.

His Majesty's Gallant Sailor—and Airman Too

—To Paraphrase Kipling

Britain is training a new type of "sea-dog" to command her ships on their journeys across the Seven Seas.

She needs—or will need within the next four years—at least 180 of them: captains whose ships can race across the sea at 60 m.p.h. and then rise on wings until they are speeding 5,000 feet above the wave-tops at 180 m.p.h.

The training-place for these men is Hamble, on the Solent. Flying boats are the craft they are learning to command.

Britain is putting practically all her Empire air traffic into flying boats. With flying boats we shall start the Atlantic air service.

When it was decided to change from land to water planes Imperial Airways had scarcely a dozen pilots trained in the handling of air boats.

Now senior captains of Imperial Airways are to qualify for their "sea legs" side by side with the newest probationary flying officers. They have to learn an entirely new kind of flying.

All pupils have to put in up to fifteen hours in the small "Cutty Sark" type flying boat and twenty-five hours in the big "Calcutta" boat. City of Swanage, that was recently withdrawn from Imperial Airways' Mediterranean services.

Sailor Lingo

Most of their "flying" hours will be spent on the water. Pilots will put in many hours taxiing their new craft up and down the Solent. They must learn all about tides and sea currents.

Also they must learn to row, sail a boat, the right (and many wrong) ways of being towed, of mooring, even seamen's knots.

They must be able to read nautical maps and know the kind of sea bottom that lies beneath their ship's keel, for if an airboat skips drops anchor on the wrong kind of sea bottom his craft may be dragged on to rocks or off course by currents and waves.

Another thing they must know—all the signals used by ships; all the things which are the written and unwritten law of the sea.

She Tears Away The Veil That Hides Beauty

MISS HENEINA B. KHOURY, who has campaigned in sixteen Oriental countries against purdah (wearing of the veil), is in London arranging for publication of her book, "Eastern Peeps from Behind the Veil."

"God created beautiful faces," she said. "Why should we hide them?"

"Purdah is a custom. It has no part in religion."

"How did the custom begin? Some say that the prophet loved his youngest wife Fatima most, and that one day he told her to hide when a certain man visited the house. She put on a veil. The other wives copied her."

"So the fashion spread." Miss Khoury began her travels in 1928. Then, returning educated from Europe, she exerted the greatest influence in favour of abolishing purdah.

Love Won
"Ajsha, a friend of mine, was one of seven girl students at the university of Damascus. All seven were under purdah."

"One day Ajsha called on me uninvited. I was very surprised."

"She explained that her cousin, a clever doctor, who had just returned from Europe, had said he would marry a European girl."

"He told his mother that he would not marry a timid creature who hid herself behind a veil."

"So I left off my veil," Ajsha said, "and we married next week."

"In a week's time," Miss Khoury added, "all seven girls had thrown away their veils."

TRIAL FLIGHTS IN MARCH

New York, Jan. 1.

Following the agreement between Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways to establish a regular mail and passenger service between Great Britain and the United States, Mr. E. Walton Moore, Assistant-Secretary of State, announced to-day that four round trips a week will be run in 1937.

The statement was made after conferences between officials of the British, Irish, Canadian, and United States Governments. Trial flights will, it is expected, begin on March 15 next. The Newfoundland-Ireland route will be tested in the summer, and later that by way of the Azores and Bermuda.

New York is mentioned as the southern port for specially severe weather.

Americans are pleased with the agreement because they can now obtain landing rights in Bermuda, thus enabling them to operate a service between there and New York, besides the Transatlantic one.

Colonel Sir Donald Banks, Director-General of the British Post Office, who called on President Roosevelt yesterday, said: "We have every hope that before long we shall see a Transatlantic flight started, with the United States, the Irish Free State, Canada, and the United Kingdom all represented in the enterprise."

There will be no merging of companies, because this would deprive the Pan-American line of any mail contracts it might obtain from the United States Post Office.

Australian Apples For German Farm Implements

A trade barrier agreement between a Sydney firm of produce exporters and German firms has just been completed.

It involves the exchange of 60,000 cases of Australian apples for German spraying materials, agricultural machinery, and general orchard requirements, says Austral News.

Exchange difficulties have resulted in Germany reducing her import of Australian apples, by about 900,000 cases, and the agreement is an attempt to revive the demand and facilitate transactions.

DISCOVERED DEBT AFTER 250 YEARS

SUGGESTIONS are being made in Somerset that a 250-year-old debt to Wells Cathedral should be repaid to cover the cost of repairs.

Recently, by chance, the Dean of Wells, Canon R. H. Malden, found an item in the Chapter minute books which revealed that the Dean and Chapter had lent the Duke of Somerset £100 to recruit forces to quell the rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth in 1685.

At 2½ per cent compound interest, says the Dean, it would amount now to a sum that would save the Cathedral financial anxiety, and he drops the broad hint that the Cathedral would settle the account for half the sum due.

HONGKONG-CANTON
COMMUNICATIONS

Now that the Canton-Hankow Railway is progressing towards final completion, there are prospects in the near future of South China having direct connection with Europe via the Hankow-Peking and trans-Siberian lines. The development will be one of the utmost importance to this part of the world. In his recent talk to the Royal Empire Society in London, Sir Cecil Clementi made reference to this project and to the need of a definite link being forged between the Canton-Hankow and the Canton-Kowloon systems. The trouble is that no junction has yet been effected between the two terminal stations at Canton, largely due, as Sir Cecil stated, to an ill-defined suspicion in the minds of certain Chinese politicians that to link up the two lines might prejudice Chinese trade. This is a very shortsighted view, and, when analysed, it will be found totally unsound. The fact is that the provision of a loop line between the two systems would be of as much benefit to Canton as to this Colony. Hongkong, as Sir Cecil stated, is the natural deep-sea port of South China; it is so by reason of geographical conditions which cannot be altered. A recognition of this point would result in closer contacts between Hongkong and Canton and be beneficial to both. Sir Cecil, in the course of his speech, also made reference to the desirability of the two centres being linked by aerial services. The two matters are closely inter-related, and it is to be hoped that the difficulties which at present stand in the way of an aerial agreement being reached will soon be overcome. Issues affecting landing rights are involved, but the more the problem is studied, the more cogent becomes the argument that this Colony's aviation policy should be based on a willingness to welcome air liners of all nationalities, regardless of whether reciprocal rights are conceded or not. Only in this manner will Hongkong be able to take its rightful place as one of the big airports of the world. The arguments in favour of such a policy have been so frequently stated by us that they call for no further elaboration. The question has now become so urgent that it is high time further efforts were made to secure a final adjustment of the matter. Inasmuch as it is, as we have shown, related to the question of aerial communication between the two ports, the thought suggests itself that something might be done by the conclusion of a double-barrelled agreement which would give Chinese planes the right to land here and also involve construction of the loop-line needed to link the two railway systems having their termini in Canton. Negotiations with this end in view might with advantage to both centres be initiated without further delay.

What I Would Tell
My Son

"YES!" I can hear my friends saying. "But what does he know about it? He has no son!" Quite obviously, if I had a son I should want to teach him all the things I was never taught.

Take the body first. My son would swim before he was six, box before he was eight, master a simple set of carpenter's tools by the age of ten, and the principle of the internal combustion engine by the time he was twelve.

In the matter of the mind I would have him taught Greek and Latin, English grammar and literature, French and German, history and geography, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry, physics and chemistry, music and drawing, and last, shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping.

NOTES OF THE DAY

AS GOOD AS DEAD

No one seems able to say definitely whether or not Japan is definitely to leave the Naval Conference; nor whether, if she does, it will have any serious consequences. In view of the belief that the Conference would be wrecked upon the Japanese demand for parity, it has been reported, Great Britain has already taken steps to lay the keels of two 57,500,000 super-dreadnoughts, even mightier than the Rodney or Nelson. But of that there is no confirmation. Now we are going to venture a prognostication, having read a good many hundreds of words purporting to explain the position at the Naval Conference. We base our prediction on two facts: namely, that Japan will insist upon a common upper limit in naval armaments and that the other powers, Britain and America principally, will oppose her. We surmise that the refusal to consider this formula must wreck the conference. It takes no very painful stretch of the imagination to reach the conclusion that Japan anticipates this impasse, and she is prepared to withdraw from the conference as soon as it is reached. Up to now the delegates have merely managed to postpone the inevitable. The results are something else again. Japan has announced that she will revive her international relations in the event of a naval armaments race. Some observers believe she has already revised them. If a naval race is imminent—and it is by no means unavoidable—it may mean very great tension in the Pacific. In any event, it will certainly bring Hongkong into the forefront of the picture and the strategic advantages, or disadvantages, of possession of this base will be more than ever apparent to interested parties.

(Since the above was written, the Japanese delegates have withdrawn from the Conference, which will, however, continue its work in the hope of attaining an agreement among the other Powers.)

policy have been so frequently stated by us that they call for no further elaboration. The question has now become so urgent that it is high time further efforts were made to secure a final adjustment of the matter. Inasmuch as it is, as we have shown, related to the question of aerial communication between the two ports, the thought suggests itself that something might be done by the conclusion of a double-barrelled agreement which would give Chinese planes the right to land here and also involve construction of the loop-line needed to link the two railway systems having their termini in Canton. Negotiations with this end in view might with advantage to both centres be initiated without further delay.

But I would teach him these things in a way of my own. I had been in the Army just over a week, I and half a dozen other attempt to give him a smattering of the lot, which means that night on the advantages of a ten years after he has left school he will have forgotten all about all of them.

I would find out in which direction my boy's bent lay and then encourage him along that bent.

If I found when he was fourteen that he still confused oxygen with hydrogen and couldn't begin to size up a problem in algebra by the mere look of it, but on the other hand had a passion for irregular verbs and was a demon at double entry, I should know the kind of brain my boy was developing. And I should develop that kind and drop most of the others.

Because, to put it shortly, knowledge has kindred grooves.

by

James Agate

A boy who finds his way to the piano naturally, will want to know languages, and a scientist who is no mathematician is a boat without a rudder. Similarly, a botanist who is an authority on roots need not know about Racine—in which, reader, you are right to detect a highly cultured joke!

But whether my boy is going to grow up to be a Greek scholar, an astronomer, a professional footballer, or a green author so out of date that if you grocer, I should insist on his mentioned him in Bloomsbury being able to take down a letter the raised eyebrows would knock in shorthand and type it correct—half the slates off.

So much for body and mind, priceless primitive old prune. But there is yet another kind of is John Ruskin, and the title of culture which partakes of both, the book in which the passage I would have my boy learn all occurs is the quite too backward to learn—first aid, elementary "Sesame and Lilies." The past-cooking, how to make a fire, sage begins with this sensational sentence:—

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"It would be something to amuse the baby when you aren't home."

"The essence of all vulgarity lies in want of sensation." Consider this, O my readers, who are always being told that the essence of vulgarity lies in too much sensation!

Now Ruskin was a great artist who realised the obligation upon the artist to be a showman as well. Light is not to be hidden under bushels, and Michael Angelo was right to blazon his paintings on the best and biggest ceilings he could find.

Similarly Ruskin, having something striking to say, said it in the most striking way imaginable. Having arrested attention with his sensational sentence he goes on to explain that it is man's duty to be a sensation-seeker and not a sensation-monger:—

"Simple and innocent vulgarity is merely an untrained and undeveloped bluntness of body and mind; but in true inbred vulgarity there is a dreadful callousness which, in extremity, becomes capable of every sort of bestial habit and crime, without fear, without pleasure, without horror, and without pity. It is in the blunt hand and the dead heart; in the diseased habit, in the hardened conscience, that men become vulgar."

And he goes on with words which should be printed in gold and set on the desk of every Cabinet Minister in the land to-day, sent by post to every member of Parliament, and blared through loud-speakers once a week to every voter in the land. These are the words:—

There is a mean wonder, as of a child who sees a juggler tossing golden balls. But do you think that the wonder is ignoble, or the sensation less, with which every human soul is called to watch the golden balls of heaven tossed through the night by the Hand that made them?

There is a mean curiosity, as of a child opening a forbidden door, or a servant prying into her master's business;—and a noble curiosity, questioning, in the front of danger, the source of the great river beyond the sand,—the place of the great continents beyond the sea;—a nobler curiosity still, which questions of the source of the River of Life, and of the space of the Continent of Heaven,—things which "the angels desire to look into."

So the anxiety is ignoble, with which you linger over the course and catastrophe of an idle tale; but do you think the anxiety is less, or greater, with which you watch, or ought to watch, the dealings of fate and destiny with the life of an agonised nation?

Alas! it is the narrowness, selfishness, minuteness of your sensation that you have to deplore in England at this day;—sensation which spends itself in bouquets and speeches; in revelings and junketings; in sham fights and gay puppet shows, while you can look on and see noble nations murdered, man by man, without an effort or a tear.

I suggest, that the foregoing should be cabled in full, without the omission of a comma, to Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler, and to every crowned head, President, Prime Minister and Chancellor in the world.

Now how does this hang on to my theme? In this way. I would have my son taught to eschew the wrong vulgarity and espouse the right. I would want him to learn the best kind of commonness, the commonness which was the property of certain fishermen nineteen hundred years ago.

AMERICAN REBUFF TO JAPAN

U.S. NOT ENTITLED
TO SUPERIORITY

NAGANO'S ARGUMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic News Agency, 1936. Reprinted, January 16, 1936.)

London, Jan. 15. The Five Power Naval Conference has ended in complete failure, following the refusal to accept Japan's parity demand. Thereupon, Japan officially withdrew from the Conference.

Admiral Osumi Nagano, the chief of the Japanese delegation, in a brief statement, said Japan had no other choice than to withdraw from the conference due to the divergence of views.

Admiral Nagano's plea for equality was couched in strong language. It was a demand. He hinted that the United States was not entitled to equality with Great Britain because of the British Empire's greater defence needs.

Mr. Norman Davis, the chief of the American delegation, replied, implying that Japan was seeking a navy superior than the defence purposes for which it was required. He said the present treaties provided equal defensive security due to the geographical location of the powers. "It is impossible to change the geography. Should a nation in this naturally secure position possess naval armaments equal to those powers not so favoured, that nation would have a marked naval superiority, far more than sufficient for her defence needs," declared Mr. Davis.

NO INSURANCE

"Equal armaments do not ensure equal security," he argued. "The Japanese have stated that one of their objectives is to create a state of non-aggression and non-menace. We are convinced this state now exists."

"It would be most difficult, even in more normal times and in conditions of greater mutual confidence, to agree upon such a radical readjustment of relative strengths as would be involved in the acceptance of a common upper limit," Mr. Davis went on. "In face of the world's present instability such readjustment, quite aside from the question of principle, is impossible," he declared.

"Bearing in mind the situations in the Far East and in Europe and in Africa, the United States is unwilling to consent to any change which would lessen its relative security, particularly in the absence of greater assurance than we now have that to do so would promote peace and establish a regime of non-menace and non-aggression."

It was learned at the end of today's meeting that the British, French, Italian and American naval delegates would meet again on Thursday without Japan, and that they probably would later invite Germany and Russia to attend their sessions.—United Press.

BUILDING FORESEEN

Washington, Jan. 15. Japan's withdrawal from the Naval Conference has brought about indications that the Navy Department may soon ask Congress for fresh funds with which to increase the country's capital ship strength.

It is learned that tentative plans have been made for the modernization of two battleships or the construction of a new battleship as a replacement at the end of the current year. This would be in addition to the Navy's stated programme of building up the fleet to twenty ships.

Asserting that further efforts to limit naval armaments are futile, Senator Key Pittman declares that Japan's withdrawal from the London conversations makes it impossible for the United States to enter into any agreement with anyone for the reduction of its naval programme.

He added that it was evident that Japan intended to embark upon an unlimited enlargement of her fleet.—Reuter.

HON. SIR HENRY POLLOCK

NO OPPOSITION FOR COUNCIL SEAT

The Hon. Sir Henry Edward Pollock, K.C., whose term of office as the representative of the Justices of the Peace upon the Legislative Council expired to-day, has been re-nominated to this office. Sir Shouson Chow, secretary by the Hon. Sir William Shenton.

As this was the only nomination put forward for this office, Sir Henry is thus elected, and the election meeting which had been arranged to take place at the Supreme Court at noon to-day, should there be more than one nomination, was not held.

U.S. FLEET MOVEMENTS

Washington, Jan. 15. Mr. Claude Swanson, the Secretary of the Navy, announced to-day that four cruisers and twenty-four destroyers would visit the Atlantic after the Spring manoeuvres, thus implying that the bulk of the U.S. fleet would remain in the Pacific.—United Press.

HAUPTMANN NEAR DEATH

Trenton (N.J.), Jan. 15. It is learned that Governor Hoffman has asked for legal advice whether legally he may reprieve Bruno Hauptmann, lying under sentence of death for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Hauptmann visited her husband when the electric chair, only thirty feet away from the condemned man's cell, was being tested in preparation for Hauptmann's execution, apparently within fifty-six hours.

On departing, Mrs. Hauptmann said of her husband that "he is confident that he will not die on Friday. He told me that he is certain the State will not take the life of an innocent man."—United Press.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

THE TRUE UNIVERSITY OF OUR DAYS IS A COLLECTION OF BOOKS.—Carlisle.

The New Zealand Insurance Co. Ltd. has issued an effective Chinese calendar bearing a striking picture of old-time warriors.

A banishment, Chan Kang, 29, with two previous convictions against him, admitted an order imposed for ten years on October 24 of last year, at the Central Magistracy this morning. Mr. Macfadyen sentenced defendant to six months' hard labour.

Chan Sang, a fisherman, of boat No. 6873B, was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday suffering from severe injuries caused when a stick of dynamite exploded in his hand while he was fishing off Ping Chau on January 14.

For returning from banishment before his period of ten years had been completed, Chan Fung, unemployed, was sent to prison for ten months by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Police Court this morning. Defendant stated he returned to Hong Kong to see a relative to get two suits of clothing made for the Chinese New Year.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Kwik Bok-gwan and the bride is the daughter of the late Mr. Tan Hock-tjwan. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith, Registrar, officiated, and the witnesses were Messrs. G. Yappo and B. Chang.

Two coolies, Yip Hon, armed with a knife, and Chan Hon, armed with an iron hook, were caught fighting in Battery Street yesterday. Appearing before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning they were each fined $75, or, in default, six weeks' hard labour. It was stated by Detective Sergeant Downman that an Indian sergeant stopped the fight in time and thus prevented any serious development. Chan Kau told the Court that Yip Hon had always accused him of stealing fish. Yip Hon stated that when he found that his fish was missing he remarked that the cat must have stolen it, whereupon he was attacked by Chan Kau.

EMBARGO ON OIL DELAYED

UNCERTAIN

LEAGUE WILL INVESTIGATE

London, Jan. 15. The question of oil sanctions against Italy was the subject of discussion this morning.

After discussion, it was generally felt it was impossible to tell to what extent an oil embargo should be applied and to what extent the oil supplying countries were prepared to co-operate. It was therefore impossible to take an immediate decision with regard to an embargo.

It is understood the question of the fate of the American Neutrality Bill was also raised.

It is believed the policy of the Government will be to favour continuing sanctions against Italy, but to ascertain by inquiry on the spot how the situation stands with regard to an oil embargo.

Technical aspects of the problem will be explored by Mr. Anthony Eden at Geneva. It is learned that it is not a question for decision for or against oil sanctions that confronts the Cabinet, but a decision whether or not they can be carried out.

It is also gathered that from the viewpoint of enforcement of sanctions, the co-operation of member states of the League of Nations has improved.—Reuter.

NO ACTION EXPECTED

Paris, Jan. 15. French leaders believe the League of Nations Council at its next week's meeting will not impose new sanctions against Italy, since Italy thus far has made no effective progress in her Ethiopian campaign and the present penalties have been unexpectedly effective.

It is pointed out that at present none of the leading powers sees any reason for immediately placing an embargo on oil.

Moreover, the commencement of the rains in Ethiopia precludes any Italian advance during the next eight months, in which there is ample time to pursue peace negotiations.

It is learned that M. Pierre Laval, the French Prime Minister, hopes that important conversations may be arranged with Baron Aloisi, the Italian diplomat at Geneva. But he doubts that they will lead directly to peace.—United Press.

EDEN'S INSTRUCTIONS

London, Jan. 15. Mr. Anthony Eden, the Foreign Minister, has been instructed following a meeting of the British Cabinet, to propose to Geneva next week that the League create a sub-committee for the investigation of the possible effects of an oil embargo against Italy.

Diplomats believe the proposal will result in the postponement of the oil boycott.—United Press.

WAR ON JAPAN DEMANDED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic News Agency, 1936. Reprinted, January 15, 1936.)

Peiping, Jan. 15. Three brigades of Student Crusaders, at present marching in Central Hopei, have been surrounded by troops of the Twenty-Ninth Army which General Sun Chieh-yuan has reportedly ordered to suppress the students' rural propaganda campaign.

No violence has been reported. The Students Union has presented gifts to the soldiers at the camp of Peiping who have on Japanese soldiers on January 5, and has congratulated them on their attitude.—United Press.

DEMANDING WAR

Nanking, Jan. 15. More than 100 traitor students called on Mr. Wang Wen-ho, Secretary-General of the Executive Yuan, and demanded to know when China was going to declare war upon Japan. They also insisted that they be told the extent of China's endurance and what were her military preparations.

The young patriots assert the Government should be determined to recover the "lost territories" and suppress the northern autonomy movement. The Government should punish the traitors in the North who pursue open diplomacy instead of secret diplomacy, hitherto the rule.

General Chiang Kai-shek is issuing a statement to-morrow.—United Press.

CHIANG'S POLICY

Tokyo, Jan. 15. The Night Nicki Shimbun states that in an interview with General Chiang Kai-shek and other Nanking officials, General Chiang appeared willing and eager to adjust Sino-Japanese relations.

At the same time, General Chiang pointed out that he was pledged never to betray the Fatherland, saying he would fight in the event of such a necessity, although he admitted that China had little chance of success in the event of resorting to arms against Japan.

It is understood that General Chiang's interview is acceptable to the Kuomintang.—United Press.

TOTTENHAM AND CHELSEA WIN CUP REPLAYS

NINE GAMES PLAYED

BARNESLEY SHOCK

STOKE BEATEN AT HOME

London, Jan. 15. Only one F. A. Cup replay remains outstanding as a result of to-day's programme when nine third round matches were decided. There was nothing exceptional in the results apart from West Ham coming a cropper at Luton and the defeat on their own ground, after time, of Bolton.

Chelsea got through easily and Tottenham scraped the odd goal at Southend. Wednesday the holders advanced another stage, but Birmingham were somewhat surprisingly beaten before their own supporters. Millwall proved no match for Stoke on the latter's pitch, whereas Tranmere found home ground advantage just sufficient to overcome Notts County.

INTERPORT BADMINTON

Shanghai To Stage A Friendly Contest

Shanghai, Jan. 11. The first interport badminton contest will be held in Shanghai during the Chinese New Year, it was announced by the Shanghai Badminton Association yesterday, world having been received from the North that a man's and women's team would arrive in Shanghai during that period.

The local Association is making arrangements to entertain the visitors with a series of games in a friendly tournament later.

Following the departure to Tientsin of Mr. G. G. Clarke, popular and energetic secretary of the Association, his duties have been taken over by Mr. E. V. de Souza, to whom all communications should be addressed to the S.M.C. Public Health Department, Room 219, 223, Hankow Road.

Rugby-Playing British Tars Beaten By Americans

Here is a scramble for the ball as members of the all-star American team picked for the occasion met and defeated the British rugby team made up of sailors from the cruiser H.M.S. Danae at San Diego, Calif. A grand pile up occurred when the ball was kicked high into the air with British tars and hometown athletes struggling for possession and just then the cameraman got busy.

Testing Interport Team

CHANGES AT SHANGHAI TO BE REVEALED

Lee Wai-Tong Must Not Take Risks On Saturday

(By "Veritas")

Hongkong's only opportunity to judge the worthiness of the team chosen to represent the Colony in the annual Interport football match against Shanghai comes this Saturday, when our nominated combination oppose The Rest in a practice match but a few hours before sailing.

But it is unreasonable to expect too much from "Our Chosen" on Saturday. It is imperative that the players take no undue risks of injury, and the game must be regarded chiefly as a means of allowing them to get together to cultivate some team work which will be so necessary in the Interport.

An impressive showing and they should not permit the possibility of a few knocks to deter them from playing their normal game. They have been supplied with first rate opposition—a side good enough to extend the Interporters to the full.

One player who can pardonably take things a bit easy is Lee Wai-tong. Though perhaps it is not generally known, Lee has been suffering for some time from a dormant leg injury, which needs only the slightest provocation to make itself apparent. It happened in the Christmas Day Cup match between China and Scotland and it recurred last week in the game between S. China "A" and Kowloon. Lee certainly cannot afford to take risks, for his very presence in the Interport team means a tremendous moral advantage to the Colony.

SHANGHAI FEAR HIM

It is not unduly flattering him to state that Shanghai fear Lee Wai-tong, and now that they know he is in the team are probably not anticipating the outcome of the match with too much confidence.

Lee will therefore be well advised to play a fairly passive part on Saturday. He should find plenty of opportunity for practising those wide flung passes of his to the wings without troubling about the (Continued on Page 9.)

Death Crash Of Track Ace

SPEEDWAY TEST TRAGEDY

Sydney, Dec. 22.

A famous speedway rider crashed to his death during the first Test between England and Australia at the Speedway Royal here to-day.

The victim of the accident was Frank Elms, the Australian track ace, while his team mate, Billy Lamont, of Wimbledon, who is well known on speedway tracks in England, was injured.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Elms, while broadsiding, crashed into the fence and Lamont was unable to avoid him.

Both riders were rushed to hospital, but Elms succumbed to his injuries.

Lamont's condition was stated to-night to be satisfactory.

Australia won the Test by 47 points to 25.—Reuter.

Two friendly hockey matches were played yesterday, in which the Hongkong Hockey Club and the East Lancashire were the winners.

The Club met a Y. M. C. A. team and in a fairly even game, defeated it by two goals to nil. J. E. Potter and S. A. Fowler scored.

The East Lancs overcame the Radio Sports Club at Caroline Hill, and though the Radio, playing with four reserves, put up a strong resistance, the game ended with a score of 5-2. Robertson (2) Bolting (2) and Owen were the scorers for the soldiers, while Chowdhury netted two for the losers.

COLONY HOCKEY UNDER REVIEW

Hints To Our Lady Interport Players

CONDUCTED BY THE PILGRIM

HOW THEY CAN BE AT THEIR BEST

It is with a certain amount of trepidation and in the hope that the ladies will not doubt my good intentions, I submit below some hints to our Interporters on the eve of their departure for Shanghai.

Miss J. Lumsden:—When clearing the ball it is well to bear in mind that feet are always safer than the hockey stick. Use your feet in preference. Remind your backs that they should not crowd the goalmouth and thus obstruct your vision, for it is highly important that you keep your eye on the ball.

Miss E. M. Gray:—When hard pressed you are inclined to kick the ball in attempting to stop it. It is well to remember when taking this risk that if the offence is committed inside the "D", a penalty corner results which may easily lead to a goal against you.

Miss A. Fowler:—Take your time when stopping the ball and try to avoid making anything like a blind swipe at it. The tendency to give away "sticks" may prove fatal.

Miss J. Wong:—You are one of the hardest workers in local hockey, but you are inclined to do too much in the first half. Try and take things easier and thus reserve your energy for the closing stages of the game. You may find your stamina of great necessity during such a period. Be careful of your positioning and give your pivot plenty of room in which to operate.

Miss M. Bryson:—It is as well not to pay too much attention to one forward, but to endeavour to keep a check on your three inside opponents. Don't forget to feed your own forwards with ground passes.

Mrs. M. Bell:—Your spilling work is excellent, but try to avoid sending the ball too often to your centre-forward, as most of the opposition lies there. Feed your wing and keep the game well open.

Miss M. Smith:—It is imperative that you keep well out on the wing and avoid crowding your inside colleague. Don't be in too great a hurry to centre, but try to take the ball well down the field.

Miss S. Dalziel:—When taking the ball forward keep it under control as much as possible, and always pass the ball to a player who is in a better position to score.

Miss P. Gittins:—Your inside forwards depend on you and your task is to keep them well supplied with passes. Endeavour to anticipate passes from the wings so that you are not slow off the mark. You may find it a big advantage to hit the ball harder than you have been doing.

Miss J. Adey:—When in possession of the ball you are prone to (Continued on Page 9.)

Our Daily Golf Hint

One of the secrets of long hitting is to strike the ball just after the low point of the downswing has been passed: at the start of the upswing.—G. E. Lardner.

Suggested Colony Interport XI

(By "The Pilgrim")

Now that the trial teams have been chosen, and the Interport hockey match with Macao is fast drawing near, the popular pastime seems to be to offer suggested teams to represent the Colony. I find I am unable to resist the temptation and append herewith my idea of the best team Hongkong can field for this important game on January 25.

Lt. Comdr. Garwood (Navy); A.E.P. Guest (Radio); Kishen Singh (Army); M. H. Hassan (Radio); W. A. Reed (Club); Alf Din (Army); G.E.R. Divillet (Club); Awtar Singh (K.I.T.C.); Gurbachan Singh (Radio); Sarngat Singh (Radio); Lal Singh (Army).

St. Andrew's "A" Suffer Crushing Defeat

BY C.R.C. IN MEN'S DOUBLES BADMINTON LEAGUE MATCH

(By "Veritas")

St. Andrew's "A" leaders of the men's doubles division of the badminton league with a 100 per cent record were made to bite the dust last evening when they figured in an extraordinary defeat at the Chinese Recreation Club. The C.R.C. walked away with all nine games, and only in two did they concede double figures.

The Saints were without F. A. Broadbridge, and brought in M. Well, their best "B" team player. But the superiority of the Chinese was so pronounced that the result would have been the same if the visitors had been at full strength.

Gordon Lum again turned out for the winners and with S. W. Liang won all three games with the loss of ten aces. It was a crushing verdict and once again establishes the fact that on their own court the C.R.C. are one of the most formidable teams in the league.

RECREIO HEAD TABLE

In consequence of the defeat of St. Andrew's and their own easy win against Kowloon Tong Recreo "A" go to the top of the table. Recreo were hosts to Kowloon Tong and naturally won at their ease. One of the most interesting features of the match was the good form shown by P. C. Leung and J. M. Pong, the losers' second pair. Pong brought off several clever backhand drop shots from the baseline and Leung concentrated on short shots from the net. They were not consistent enough or (Continued on Page 9.)

Y.M.C.A. DROP BEHIND

CENTRAL BRITISH IN FORM

DESERVED WIN

The Y.M.C.A. so seriously jeopardised their chances of winning the Caer Clark Cup by losing to C.B.A. last week, that it will require blunders on the part of both the Hongkong Ladies and the Central British Association for the "Y" to stand any hope of finishing as champions.

C.B.A. deservedly won by two clear goals after an uninteresting first half which was void of anything approaching good hockey. One goal, however, was scored during this period, Miss M. Smith being the marksman.

The second half saw a big improvement, one of the features being Miss Smith's second goal which was easily the best of the match.

Mrs. White as leader, with Miss Rosseau on the right wing were the pick of the winners' attack which was always livelier and more progressive than that of the "Y".

Miss Bryson played her usual strong game at centre-half and was splendidly flanked on the right by Miss Iris Woolley. Miss P. Woolley and Miss Walker were brilliant in defence, while Miss Best in goal was very capable and reliable, and effected two very smart saves under strong pressure.

Lacking the assistance of Miss Sybil Dalziel, the Y.M.C.A. played a very disjointed type of game and were disappointing. Mrs. Read at centre-forward could not get going and Mrs. Brown at inside right also had an off day. Positional changes were attempted in the second half but they proved disastrous. Miss Fowler, who moved to inside left appeared to be over-anxious and missed a certain goal. Miss Thompson worked exceedingly hard at centre-half, but she paid rather too much attention to Mrs. White and neglected Miss Smith who found she had plenty of room and time in which to make her movements.

Miss P. McCaw was prominent at right back, but when Mrs. Read moved from attack to defence it was obvious that she was too slow for the Smith-Rosseau combination.

Club de Recreo Lose Again

No Match For St. Andrew's

St. Andrew's had a fairly easy time against the Recreo, beating them by three goals to one. Miss Gittins again led the winners' forward line with enterprise and skill and was responsible for all three goals. Miss F. Wong and Miss Booker gave their skipper the necessary support, while Miss J. and Miss G. White were as safe as houses in defence.

For the losers Miss C. Silva at centre-forward gave a dashing display, but was inadequately supported by her wings. However she fittingly scored the Recreo's only goal.

Miss C. Osmund was outstanding in defence while Miss E. Xavier at right half was a hard worker. In spite of their comfortable success the Saints gave the impression that the defence could afford to tighten up for future matches.

Indian Test

Australian Team Captained By Rajah Of Patiala

Cakutta, Jan. 15. The Australian and Indian unofficial test match opened here to-day, when the Maharajah of Patiala, who personally brought the Australian team to India, captained the Australian side. His son captained the home team.

The home side won the toss and opened the batting, which reached 88 runs for no wicket at lunch time.—Reuter's Bulletin.

BRADDOCK AS OUTSTANDING SPORTS PERFORMER OF YEAR

TOP OF THE WORLD—James J. Braddock, Boxing champ.

MRS. WILLS-MOODY VOTED SECOND

AMERICANS WHO STAGED MOST SUCCESSFUL COME-BACKS

The story-book rise of James J. Braddock from the relief rolls to the world heavyweight boxing championship has been labelled by American sports experts as the greatest comeback of 1935. The year was filled with many spectacular returns to form, but participants in a recent sports poll accorded the rugged and courageous New Jersey veteran prime recognition, and placed Helen Wills Moody, already voted the outstanding woman athlete performer of the year, in the runner-up role.

Braddock and Mrs. Moody, who came out of a two-year retirement and won the Wimbledon tennis championship, were involved in a spirited contest by the experts and it was not until the last few votes were counted that the fighter established his final margin of popularity. All told, Braddock polled 189 points to 171 for Mrs. Moody.

THREE VOTES CAST

The vote was polled on a 3-2-1 point basis with experts listing their three "comeback" choices in the order of preference. Braddock was a pronounced favourite in the matter of first places. Forty-six voters put him at the top of their lists, while Mrs. Moody drew 31 three-point votes.

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, Boston Red Sox southpaw pitcher, and Glenn Collett Vase of Philadelphia, who won the national golf title for the first time in five years and the sixth time in her career, ended in a deadlock for third place, each receiving 48 points. Suffering from a sore arm, Grove was a "just" last year, but he regained his form in the 1935 campaign, won twenty games and set a record by compiling the league's best earned-run average for the seventh time.

Tommy Hitchcock, the polo player, and Charles Gilbert, St. Louis Cardinals infielder, two athletes whose injuries it was feared might wreck their careers, were included among the first ten leading comeback performances. Hitchcock polled 18 points in the voting while nine points, while Gilbert, who almost shot one foot off in a hunting accident a couple of years ago, was tenth with six points.

- Tabulation of the poll on the year's outstanding individual come-back:
- | Points | Player |
|--------|--|
| 189 | 1. James J. Braddock, world heavyweight boxing champion |
| 171 | 2. Helen Wills Moody, Wimbledon tennis champion |
| 48 | 3. Robert Moses Grove, Boston Red Sox southpaw pitcher |
| 48 | 4. Glenn Collett Vase, national women's golf champion |
| 46 | 5. Wilmer Allison, national men's tennis champion |
| 44 | 6. Tony Cansoner, world's light-weight boxing champion |
| 41 | 7. Alvin (General) Crowder, Detroit Tigers pitcher |
| 39 | 8. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., world's only 10-goal polo player |
| 37 | 9. Wesley Ferrell, Boston Red Sox pitcher |
| 36 | 10. Charles Gilbert, St. Louis Cardinals infielder |

MAMAK LEAGUE

K.I.T.C. WIN EASILY

ST. ANDREW'S MAKE START

The Kowloon Indians won two easy points in the Mamak League on Sunday when they beat St. Andrew's by five clear goals. The champions did not give of their best despite the result, as the Saints were somewhat weak opposition, this being their first match of the season.

A. Khan, Avtar Singh, Pinto and Souza formed a dangerous and penetrative attack, while Tara Singh, Karnal Singh and Kishan Singh were prominent in defence. St. Andrew's forward line was ragged, C. Angus being the only player to control the ball. With plenty of patient practice Angus will develop into a good inside forward.

The half back line worked with a will but not always to the best advantage. A. S. Bliss was well to the fore and played a conspicuous game throughout. E.H.P. White gave a good account of himself and was ably supported by F. V. Wong. The latter's brother, Dick Wong, unhappily was off form and played rather faultily between the sticks. It is a pity St. Andrew's have got so far behind in their league fixtures, but I think it is their own fault, and they are going to suffer an added disadvantage when Bliss leaves with the Interport football team for Shanghai.

LOCAL YACHTING

In yesterday's sweepstake races the "A" Division event was won by Major P. C. Booty, in True Blue, and the Mixed Classes event went to Captain P. Trimble in Guel.

The course was, Kowloon Rocks (S), Channel Rocks (S), Rumsey Shoal (P), Mark on Line (P), and Channel Rocks (S), a distance of 8.3 miles.

Can make better use of such passes than anybody else in Hongkong. But if he is starved he cannot be expected to pull his weight.

Then again both Talbot and Leonard have to remember that if Lee is to score goals he must be given the through-the-middle pass.

Both players know how to make them, and if they work together intelligently there is every reason to expect this trio to score a lot of goals, both on Saturday and in the Interport.

varied enough to worry the Recreio couples, but it showed that the two players are fast improving.

Eliot Hall "A" scored another win, Fire Brigade being their victims. Once again E. L. H. Shute, together with W. Stoker played masterly badminton and not only did they beat K. Y. Lee and K. S. Liew, but they forced C. O. Lee and C. S. Heng to a "settled" game. The other Brigade pairs were not in the same class and Eliot Hall finally won by eight games to one.

C.R.C. v. ST. ANDREW'S

S. W. Liang and Gordon Lum (C.R.C.) beat A. E. P. Guest and M. Weill 21-3; beat E. F. Fincher and H. Kew 21-3; beat K. H. Wong and F. V. Wong 21-4.

S. P. Chan and H. T. Woo (C.R.C.) beat Guest and Weill 21-8; beat Fincher and Kew 21-17; beat Wong and Wong 21-1.

W. C. Choy and H. W. Ho (C.R.C.) beat Guest and Weill 21-9; beat Fincher and Kew 21-14; beat Wong and Wong 21-7.

RECREIO "A" v. KOWLOON TONG

L. A. Carvalho and A. M. Silva (Recreio "A") beat S. A. Gray and G. A. White 21-2; beat P. C. Leung and J. M. Pong 21-2; beat H. Chan and B. K. Wong 21-3.

J. A. Alves and M. Oliveira (Recreio "A") beat Gray and White 21-2; beat Leung and Pong 21-5; beat Chan and Wong 21-4.

C. O. Lee and C. S. Heng (Eliot Hall "A") beat Shute and Stoker 21-20; beat Anderson and Fisher 21-6; beat Skinner and Greenwood 21-3.

K. Y. Lee and K. S. Liew (Eliot Hall "A") lost to Shute and Stoker 16-21; beat Anderson and Fisher 21-3; beat Skinner and Greenwood 21-0.

Miss Brockler Strikes Brilliant Form

The Diocesan Girls' School, by far the superior team, defeated the C.R.A. by four clear goals. Miss H. Brockler scored three of them in the second half. This brilliant young leader is at present playing splendid hockey and will be making a name for herself in local hockey circles in the future.

Miss da Roza and Miss M. Churn also showed up well in the attack. Miss A. Chubb and Miss N. Wittchell were the pick of a sound defence.

The C.R.A. seemed rather weak as a team and were at no stage impressive. It is plain that an all-round improvement is necessary before the team can expect successes to come their way.

What Saturday's Match Should Reveal

more strenuous phases of forward line leadership.

It is a very comforting feeling to know that we are sending such a fine half back trio to Shanghai, and there is small cause to doubt that they will dominate on Saturday. But attention will be directed towards the defence where, I believe I am right in saying, Swain and Pile play together for the first. We are already assured of their individual ability. It is unquestionable. But it is equally important that they try to develop a good understanding so that there shall be no faulty positioning or bad covering work.

The team will doubtless work out a plan of attack under the joint guidance of Lee Wai-tong, Sydney Strange and Manning Raiton and whether they advise Swain and Pile to cover the centre of the field, or alternatively to concentrate on the wings will largely depend on their knowledge of the Shanghai type of play. It may also depend on whether it is found necessary to keep Beltrao concentrated on Albert Howe, which, to all intents and purposes is the adoption of the third back game.

If this is necessary the backs will automatically cover the wings, but, if Beltrao is able to play a normal centre-half game and keep up with his forwards, the centre-field formation may prove to be preferable.

LEONARD'S TASK

Leonard has deservedly made the team but to the average spectator on Saturday he will still more or less be on trial. This is chiefly because Leonard is playing in a somewhat "foreign" position, and interest will naturally be centred on whether he can adapt himself so that the right wing becomes the potent force desired and anticipated. Fortunately he is no stranger to Bernie Gosano's style of play and if Leonard uses his brains as well as his feet there is no reason why he and Gosano should not make a very effective wing.

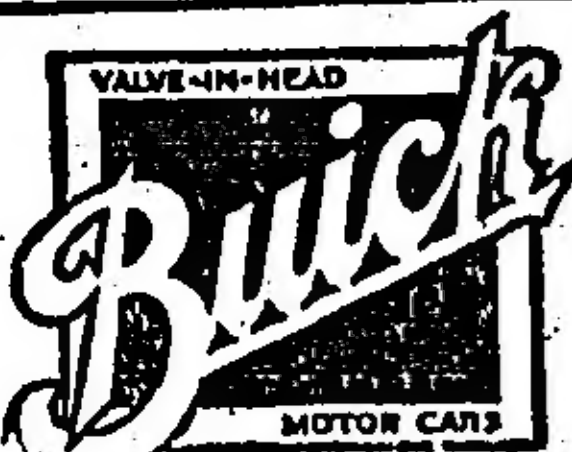

The left wing is in a similar position. Talbot is one of the finest forwards ever seen in local football—except when he will try and round his opponent on the "blind" side which entails him taking the ball back instead of forward. It is a retrogressive trick, especially when it is overdone. Talbot's task is to concentrate on sending out those lovely passes which we all know he can give.

Like every other winger, Bickford is dependent on them if he is to be of any value to the team. One of the chief reasons why Bickford is in the side is because he

SERIAL STORY—

BARGAIN BRIDE

by KATHARINE HAVLAND-TAYLOR

Coldly Barrett asked, "Why didn't you keep Hutton?"
Elinor flushed; her eyes wavered. She had sent the chauffeur home because she didn't want anyone to know about her going to see Philip. She had murmured something about uncertainty of plans and dismissed Hutton.

"I had some shopping to do," she stammered, "and you know how difficult it is to park cars near—"
"I feel I quite understand," he responded levelly, easily. She raised surprised eyes and, as she saw his face, her colour receded.

"I must remind you," Barrett went on inflexibly, "that I told you several weeks ago, I would not have you indulging in flirtation."
"Why, Barrett?" she stammered.

"You were with Bobby Telfare all afternoon," he stated.
"But I wasn't!" She was stung by the injustice.

"Did you have a pleasant time with Besse?" he asked.
"I had a lovely afternoon," she answered, not quite evenly. She would have gone on to tell him that she had gone elsewhere but he looked at his watch, murmured an excuse and left the room.

Alone, she stood with tears brimming in her eyes and teeth set on her lower lip. Such a reception after the morning!

She drank her tea as gallantly as she could, hoping to hide her emotions from the keen eyes of Higgins. Then she went to her room and let the tears come.

Higgins tapped on her door at six to say that Mr. Barrett was dining out. Would she like her dinner served on a little table near the library fire? He saw her swallow convulsively before she responded.

"That would be very nice," she said, lifting her head.

Obviously, she decided when the door was closed on Higgins and she was alone again Barrett rectified his softening towards her that morning. She regretted it too. The moment of tenderness had given her such high hopes.

She laughed bitterly at the thought. What a fool she had been to think a kiss from him could mean anything, when once before he had shown how lightly he considered such a career.

At the end of the stipulated year she would work. She would not take a cent from him. She wished she could be working now. Then she would have less time to think, to imagine what life might have been for her if she had had the power to make him love her and to hold that love.

She did her best to eat. She didn't want the servants to know how utterly Barrett's chill, disappointing eyes had crushed her. In spite of determination she could do no more than dilly with her food. It choked and sickened her.

Having eaten, she went to the drawing room, sat down at the piano and played the greatest tunes. Higgins, hearing her, guessed something of her mood. "Poor young thing!" he thought. "Another quarrel and her heart is breaking from it."

But Higgins was not worried. The couple had quarrelled before and made up that quarrel almost immediately. He decided, putting silver away in his cotton-funnel belt, "they'll be thick as thieves, calling each other 'heart's desire' and the like."

On the morrow the butler concluded the quarrel had been worse than he thought. Barrett and Elinor scarcely spoke at all. The evening meal was the only one they ate together. Elinor looked pitifully unhappy and Barrett's expression was grimly blank. He left the house almost immediately after the meal and she made no attempt to entertain herself.

Each time she was out of the house he was sure she was with Bobby Telfare. Marcia had seen them together and spoken of it to Barrett in a casual, light way. It seemed to Elinor that each time she stepped from the door she was sure to meet Bobby somewhere and be obliged to speak a word or two to him. Barrett was certain that she went to lower New York to spend hours with Telfare.

He plunged into work with a zest that was fantastic—writing, arranging new exhibits, appraising them. He helped Elinor with his plans for an expedition, taking over all the dull details such as ordering tin dippers, pickaxes and soap. He found time to write a series of articles. He superintended plans for the gallery of a friend who had long wanted a suitable home for his paintings, bits of jade, predellas and such. And yet he couldn't keep busy enough to forget his heartache.

He thought he would feel some relief with Elinor away. He found, instead, endless worry and conjecture. In the silence of the house which seemed cold no matter what the temperature, he wondered what she might be doing. He wished the year they had agreed their marriage should endure would come to an end.

The name of Colin had always been kept free from scandal. Marcia's affair had been underhanded and cheap but legal enough. She had been married to Len Moore who had abandoned her with her where he found she could not give him the wealth he had supposed was hers. Len had died before Marcia's and Barrett's father left them his fortune.

Elinor was aware that Aiken was a very pleasant place. The sunshine was warming and the air soft, the hills and valleys green and the view from the house they had taken, charming.

His father was carried to the terrace and sat there for long afternoons. Elinor sat beside him reading words she did not sense, smiling at him when they paused to chat, wondering what Barrett was doing and whether he missed her at all. She tried to seem normal and light-hearted, hoping the letters Barrett directed to her—for effect—would hold some suggestion that his coldness was thawing. They never did.

"It's beautiful here," said Bentwell one afternoon. "I don't know when I've been so contented—so at peace!"

He was still too weak to think about others or he would have seen his daughter's misery. He was so slow to get well, Elinor thought with deep anxiety. And when she spoke of it to some of the nurses they agreed, avoiding her eyes and murmuring something about "time." Science knows when human batteries are low and warning but science does not always tell.

New York's Black-OutCITY THROWN INTO CONFUSION

New York, Jan. 16.

Some 60,000 persons on their way home in underground railways and occupants of over a million homes and offices were plunged into confusion at 4.15 p.m. to-day when the electric supply failed in an area comprising virtually all New York north of Manhattan and extending to the northern boundary of the Bronx.

Electric lifts and clocks stopped, 18,000 extra policemen called out to prevent looting and disorders.

Over 7,000 firemen stood by for extra service.

The Black-out continued for three-quarters of an hour before the services began to be restored and the millions of emergency candles were snuffed out.—Reuter.

naval pact jeopardised if the Naval Conference collapses as a result of the withdrawal of the Japanese, is contained in a communiqué published in the Diplomatische Correspondenz to-day. The communiqué is regarded as reflecting the views of the Wilhelmstrasse.

It declares that "Germany proved her willingness to adapt her demands for security to a general reduction of naval armaments by concluding the Anglo-German naval pact. Therefore Germany would like to see certain developments avoided which might endanger existing agreements and create a new situation with all its problems."—Reuter.

INEVITABLE OUTCOME

Berlin, Jan. 16.

The Japanese withdrawal from the Naval Conference is regarded as the inevitable outcome by practically the entire press in Germany.

"Japan goes, but Moscow comes," is the comment of the Kokalanzeiger. This paper adds: "The absence of an honest determination to disarm condemned the conference to failure from the beginning. The United States and Britain may arrive at some agreement, but they cannot lay down any definite disarmament programme as long as Japan does not join in."

"Meanwhile the Franco-Italian rivalries continue."

Volkmar Boebacher heads his report from London with "Anglo-American Naval Agreement Against Japan."

FERRY INCIDENTDAMAGE CAUSED BY PASSENGER

Ho Hung-tin, 21, unemployed, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the central magistracy this morning on two charges: (a) boarding a ferry boat belonging to the H. K. Y. Ferry Co., without paying his fare, and (b) causing damage to property.

Sub-inspector Min, prosecuting, stated that about 11.15 on Tuesday morning, just as the ferry-boat Man Chung was leaving the Connaught Road Wharf, defendant jumped on to it, landing on the wooden covering protecting the steering gear, and breaking it. He was seen by the coxswain and arrested.

His Worship, remarking that the damage done was not malicious, discharged defendant on the second count, but ordered him to pay the Company $3, the cost of the damage. On the first charge, defendant was given the alternative of paying a fine of $20 or serving three weeks in gaol.

THE STORY OF A BROKEN EGGPOLICE UNABLE TO PRODUCE IT

A case relating to the theft of a hen's egg caused much laughter at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Choi Yu-tung, accused of the theft from a shop in Kowloon City, pleaded before Mr. Wynne-Jones that the egg was broken and he thought it had been abandoned.

The police were unable to produce the egg as an exhibit, as it was smashed in the defendant's jacket pocket. All that was left was the yoke and some shells.

The Magistrate: "What is the value of the egg?"

Inspector Chester Woods: Four cents, your Worship.

The Magistrate: A good egg! (Laughter.)

A fine of $10 or fourteen days' hard labour, was imposed.

elements, which have neither the knowledge nor the wish to understand the world outside Japan.

No responsible Japanese statesman can, says the journal, think seriously of challenging the United States to a race in naval construction. On further reflection, Japan may come to realise that an agreement on matters which they regard as secondary, such as an interchange of construction plans regarding maximum tonnage and gun-power of individual vessels, may be better than no agreement at all.—Reuter.

AGREEMENT IMPOSSIBLE

London, Jan. 16.

At a meeting of the first Committee of the London Naval Conference this afternoon, at which the first Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Monsell, presided, the Japanese delegate restated the proposal for a common upper limit of naval armaments. The delegates of other Powers then spoke, explaining their objections to the proposal, and it was clear that no agreement was possible.

The Committee adjourned and subsequently the Japanese delegation intimated their decision to withdraw from the Conference. The first Committee is meeting this afternoon, when it will proceed with other questions, taking up the thread of the work where it was interrupted towards the end of last week by the request of the Japanese delegation for an opportunity to advance again its own proposal.

In a statement from the chair, the first Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Monsell, explained the attitude of the United Kingdom delegation to the Japanese proposal to the first Committee of the Naval Conference this evening.

In the view of the delegates, the Japanese strength could not be measured in terms of numbers of fighting ships without reference to factors, such as remoteness of bases, sources of supply and vulnerability of communications.

A Power with world-wide responsibilities must develop its naval forces to the protection of its communications and must therefore possess forces in excess of a Power able to maintain its whole naval forces in or near its home waters.

Accordingly, the United Kingdom delegation did not find the proposal to apply a common upper limit either to the British Commonwealth, the United States and Japan, or to all Powers, consistent with the defence requirements of the British Commonwealth, and agreed with the United States delegate that it is impossible to maintain equal armaments giving equal security.

WHAT PROPOSAL MEANS

The Japanese proposal, if applied universally, would mean that every country, however slender its responsibilities, would not only have the right to build up its naval strength to equality with its neighbours, but might be encouraged to do so. Thus the plan might well furnish an incentive for a general increase in building among the Powers at present possessing small Navies.

The British Government and people yield nothing to Japan in their desire to see a general reduction of naval armaments, but such reduction must be achieved by a method which is fair to all and impairs the security of none.

The Japanese delegation to-night issued a long statement regarding their withdrawal from the Conference and defending their proposal for a common upper limit, with a reduction or abolition of offensive armaments, as the most logical method of securing a state of non-menace and non-aggressive disarmament.

REGRET EXPRESSED

The withdrawal of the Japanese delegation from the Conference, although by no means unexpected, has caused lively regret in London.

In circles closely connected with the Conference, the view is expressed that the impracticability of the Japanese proposal, as first shown by the plain fact that it was found unacceptable by all other participants in the discussions.

It is thought unfortunate that the Japanese delegation came to the Conference with such narrow instructions. There is a general impression that the form of the Japanese proposal was dictated by too close consideration of their own needs and too little consideration for the requirements of other Powers. This is illustrated by the fact that, while stressing anxiety to secure the abolition of offensive categories of naval armament, there is undesignated regret that the Japanese delegation were unwilling to remain to discuss an agreement providing for a frank exchange of information and various questions of qualitative disarmament which have still to come before the Conference.

The more so as the Japanese delegation have been treated with great consideration and the Conference has given the fullest discussion to their proposal at five out of ten meetings so far held of the first Committee, as well as almost exclusively at one meeting of the heads of delegations.

In Conference circles, however, the hope is strongly entertained that the withdrawal of the Japanese delegation from the further work of the Conference will not lead to recriminations or affect the relations of the Powers concerned adversely in respect to other questions. The Japanese delegation itself has stated that "notwithstanding our withdrawal from the Conference, we are far from entertaining the slightest wish to embark upon an armament race. We are firmly determined to endeavour, as heretofore, to promote the cause of world peace by assiduously cultivating the most friendly relations with other nations."—British Wireless.

Committed For TrialTHREE PROMINENT CITY MEN

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, Jan. 16.

Garned Blighgrian, John Brownson and Louis Haray, all prominent City men, charged in connection with the prospectus issued to the public concerning the bankrupt firm of James and Spence, were committed for trial to-day and allowed bail of $1,400 each.

When the case for the prosecution was closed at Mansion House, Sir Patrick Hastings, K.C., submitted there was no case for any of the defendants to answer. He referred to the Kylian case which was similar. The prosecution had not shown that statements in the prospectus in question were rendered false by the fact that some information had been omitted.

With respect to the defendant Blighgrian, Sir Patrick said he had handed over his business, which was valued at £20,000, to Messrs. James and Spence a year ago, to Messrs. James and Spence and that he did not receive a penny for it, but merely shares in the new company.

Were the defendants, who held honoured names in the City, to be seen as guilty of criminal fraud simply because things known to the accountants and solicitors were omitted from their prospectus? he asked.—Reuter Special.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE KIDDIESCHILDREN'S PLAY COMING

Here is good news for all who were disappointed when the Pantomime was cancelled. Hermione Beaulier is producing an original Christmas play, written for, and acted by children on Thursday, January 30 and Saturday, February 1, at the Helena May Institute.

"Trouble in Toyland" is not an ordinary pantomime, but a play full of fun that children will understand, and charm that will delight grown-ups. (The author prefers to remain anonymous, but the Old Black Cross has a bunch about it!)

Mr. Bremner, and talented helpers in H.M.S. Kent, are doing the scenery, and Father and Mother Christmas themselves should be delighted with their under studies, Mr. Buchanan-Dunlop and popular Mrs. Kenyon. Take your tickets now—it will be grand entertainment for everyone, and everyone is going.

The cast includes: Jocelyn and Tommy Reever, Evelyn Buyers, Vivian Gilchrist, Prudence Johnson, Wendy Joseph, Phyllis Saver, Martin, Selby, Smith, and Jane Strollett. Madame de Precourt has arranged the dances, and Mrs. Lowick is playing for them. The performances are at 5.30 on Thursday and Saturday fortnight. Tickets children 50 cents and grown-ups 1s.—Contributed.

COURT REFUSES APPLICATIONDECLINES TO REOPEN CASE

An application to reopen the case in which the Hon. Sir William Shenton and Mr. M. H. Turner successfully sued Chey Wai-hun, of the Hongkong Trading Co. (1931) Ltd., for $306.68, being interest due on a mortgage, was made by Mr. C. E. R. Sanderson, on behalf of the defendant, before Mr. Justice J. J. Haylen at the Summary Court this morning.

The action against the defendant was that he had guaranteed to pay the interest on a mortgage made between the plaintiffs and one Lai Koon-chai on August 4, 1934.

Mr. Sanderson said the application was made as the result of the refusal of the plaintiffs to allow the defendant, after he had paid the interest, to collect the rent from the property. This being the position, he would like to ask the Court to reopen the case in order to hear further evidence on the point. Another ground for the application was that His Lordship had misdirected himself in holding that the authorities submitted by the defence had no bearing on the case.

Mr. W. A. Mackinlay opposed the application on behalf of the plaintiffs, submitting that the case should not be re-opened as no grounds had been put forward. The defendant had ample opportunity of hearing all the evidence, and the fact that he did not avail himself of it was entirely his own fault. Furthermore, it was stipulated in the agreement that whatever subsequent action the mortgagors might take did not release the defendant from his guarantee.

His Lordship dismissed the application with costs, saying that no sufficient ground had been put forward.
